SOVIET BOSS WARNS U. S.

Weiss Will Be Sworn as Judge Next Wednesday

David H. Weiss, of Monessen, will be sworn in as a judge of Westmoreland County common pleas court next Wednesday at the courthouse in Greensburg, making him the first Monessen resident to become a judge in the history of the county.

Gov. George M. Leader yesterday appointed Weiss to replace the late George H. McWherter. The appointment runs until the first Monday of January, 1958.

Last Saturday, Weiss, an assistant district attorney, was selected as the Democratic nominee for the court vacancy created by the death of Judge McWherter. He will run for a regular 10-year term in the November general election.

It could not be learned today who actually made the request to Goveror Leader to appoint Weiss to the vacancy. The Governor's announcement early yesterday afternoon came as a surprise even to those close to the Democratic-controlled courthouse.

Some said they didn't know of the appointment until they read it in The Daily Independent last night.

Notified by Governor

Weiss told a reporter of his appointment about 2 p. m. yesterday, a short time after he was notified by the Governor's office.

Tuesday morning, Jay W. Kromer, Democratic county chairman, told The Independent that the party's policy committee would meet "soon" to draft a petition to Governor Leader requesting him to appoint Weiss. At that time, Kromer indicated that the request wouldn't be submitted until later this week.

It was learned from a reliable source, however, that Kromer and other party bigwigs, including Chief of County Detectives Arthur B. (Buddy) Turner, reputed party boss, met later Tuesday afternoon and decided to send the request immediately.

It was rumored that State Sen. John H. Dent, a top party leader, submitted the request personally to Governor Leader in Harrisburg yesterday.

Once the appointment was made public, there was immediate speculation as to Weiss' successors for his five salaried jobs, all controlled by Democrats.

Besides being an assistant district attorney, he is solicitor for the City of Monessen, the Monessen School District, the Rostraver Twp. School District and the Rostraver Twp. Supervisors.

To Give up Jobs

State law will require Weiss to give up these jobs once he takes the oath of office.

It was learned by The Independent today that no fewer than four Monessen attorneys are making bids to succeed Weiss as school solicitor. The post pays $1,200 a year.

It was also learned that the City intends to have only one solicitor. At present Weiss shares the job with Attorney Frank Ezerski Jr. It is believed that Ezerski will take over alone, probably at an increased salary. Weiss and Ezerski each now receive $2,250 a year from the city.

Turner, who resides in Rostraver Twp., probably will have the say as to who will fill the two township solicitor jobs when Weiss resigns.

As for his assistant D. A. position, rumor has it that Ezerski may also succeed him there. That job now pays Weiss $5,000 a year.

The salary of a common pleas judge is $20,000 a year.

For his services to the Rostraver School District, Weiss receives $25 a month — $300 a year.

District Teamsters Explain Stand On James Hoffa

A spokesman for Teamsters Local 872 expalined today that "our local has neither endorsed nor rejected an endorsement" of controversial James R. Hoffa who wants to succeed the union's retiring national president Dave Beck.

Local 872, which represents Mon Valley drivers, met earlier this week and endorsed Harry Tevis, of Pittsburgh, as an international vice-president. However the teamsters did not act on a similar endorsement for Hoffa.

"We do not wish to convey the impression that our local opposes Mr. Hoffa," said Business Agent William Kreuter. "We simply withheld endorsement of a candidate for president until we know if any other men were after the job."

Kreuter did not comment on reports that Hoffa is extremely unpopular in the district. One union official, who asked to remain unidentified, predicted that Hoffa will not have a single Pittsburgh district local supporting him.

Now under fire from the Senate Rackets Committee, Hoffa hopes to take over as president of the powerful Teamsters Union at the annual convention in Miami, Fla., which begins Sept. 30.

Rescued from 15 Foot Well

ARCATA, Calif. (UP)—A 3-year-old boy was extricated Wednesday from a narrow well into which he had fallen feet first while playing with other children.

The boy, Michael Swenson, and his companions were playing near a newly-dug well which had been covered with boards. Becoming curious, the children pushed the boards aside and peered down the 15-foot-deep well.

Little Michael, unaware of the danger, toddled too close to the side, before he knew it, he had plunged to the bottom of the dry well even though it was only seven inches in diameter.

Counter Spy Key Witness

By JOHN CAVANAUGH

NEW YORK (UP) — A fellow Russian espionage agent who defected to the West shaped up today as the key witness against Soviet intelligence Col. Rudolf Ivanovich Abel, indicted Wednesday as the most important Red spy ever seized in the United States.

Ironically, the potential witness, Reino Hayhanen, was named as a co-conspirator in the indictment against Abel who posed in their country as a down-and-out artist and photographer for nine years while heading a Soviet spy ring. Hayhanen, who spent six years in the United States as a trained spy, was flown here earlier this week and testified Wednesday before the Brooklyn grand jury that indicted Abel on three counts of espionage.

Abel, a mild - mannered, nondescript - appearing man of 55, was pictured in the indictment as the mastermind of a spy network that transmitted American defense secrets to Moscow by radio and courier. Specifically, Abel, a Russian national, was charged with conspiring to transmit to Russia documents, maps, photographs and other information "relating to the national defense" of the United States.

If convicted, he could be executed under the so-called Rosenberg law, which sent Julius and Ethel Rosenberg to the electric chair in 1953 for spying for Russia.

Entered From Canada

The balding, blue - eyed Abel, who entered the United States from Canada in 1948, was expected to be returned here in a day or two from Edinburg, Tex., where he was held without bail in the Hidalgo County Jail after declining bond. The Soviet intelligence officer was turned over to the FBI Wednesday by immigration officials who were about to deport him for entering the United States illegally when the indictment was returned.

Abel was arrested in New York June 21 on a charge of illegal entry and placed in an alien detention camp at McAllen, Tex. Subsequent inspection of his hotel room here convinced agents Abel was a Russian spy. In the room, the agents found a short-wave radio set, a hollowed-out pencil and several cryptic notes. A later search of his small studio uncovered a second short - wave radio, cameras, and photographic equipment including microfilm. In addition, the agents found maps of several cities and other urban centers, including New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Abel's studio was in a building directly across from the Brooklyn courthouse where the indictment was handed up Wednesday.

So far as they knew, authorities said, Abel was not linked with the espionage ring headed by Jack and Myra Soble of New York, who are scheduled to be sentenced Friday for transmitting American defense secrets to Russia. Nor was he believed to have been connected with another alleged Red spy network to which George and Jane Slatovski, Americans living in Paris, have been linked by the U.S. government.

TELLS OF RACKETEER DEMANDS, VEILED THREATS — At the Senate labor rackets hearing in Washington, Brooklyn, N. Y., plumbing supply manufacturer Paul Claude testifies (left) that Max Chester, who was convicted with Johnny Dio for extorting $30,000 from employers, demanded that he unionize his business and promised a beneficial "sweet-heart" contract if Claude would fork over $2,000. Claude said there were veiled references to possibility of his children being run down by traffic. Chester is shown (right) under questioning by Senator John McClellan (D), Arkansas. 'Watered-down' CR Bill Sent to House

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate's watered-down civil rights bill was delivered to the House today and Speaker Sam Rayburn promised a statement Friday on how he proposes to handle it.

Meantime, the veteran Texas lawmaker declined comment on the bill as passed by the Senate 72 to 18 Wednesday night, or on developing Democratic plans to win final passage of the measure in a form just about like that approved by the Senate.

A Senate reading clerk returned the Senate - amended bill to the House immediately after Rayburn gavelled the session to order at 11 a.m. e.d.t.

Without fanfare it was placed on the speaker's desk, where it was expected to remain until early next week pending final agreement on Democratic strategy for getting it passed and sent to the White House.

(Both Pennsylvania senators —Republican Edward Martin and Democrat Joseph Clark— voted in favor of the Senate version of the Civil Rights bill.)

There was a growing belief the Democrats would succeed in their drive to send the bill, in something close to its present form, to the White House. Major civil rights groups were throwing their support to the bill as at least a first step and as better than nothing at all.

Much Jockeying

There was much jockeying and maneuvering ahead, however, with Republicans and Southern Democrats holding the key to the outcome—as they have in the past.

The Senate, by a resounding majority of 72-18, turned a historic corner at 8:15 p.m. e.d.t. by pass-

Says He Was Playing Golf

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP) - A "misunderstanding" today was blamed for the five state police search for Harvard University's new football coach John Yovicsin who seemingly disappeared Sunday.

Yovicsin's wife, Betty, said the search was all due to a "Misunderstanding about when he was to arrive at Harvard. It's all my fault."

Mrs. Yovicsin called off the search Wednesday morning when her husband called her from Allentown, Pa., and told her he was enroute home.

Valley Country Club Considers Pool Project

Stockholders of the Monongahela Valley Country Club at a special meeting last night agreed to continue consideration of a project including construction of a swimming pool and major improvements to the clubhouse.

The meeting was held at the club on Route 88 and was presided over by Dr. Harold Underwood, of Belle Vernon, president of the club.

The board of directors is seeking permission from the stockholders to raise a sum of $100,000 among the members through an insurance plan in order to finance the project.

After a discussion, it was decided to arrange another meeting at which further information about the plan will be made available. No date was set.

A long-range program for the club also includes expansion of the golf course to 18 holes from the present 9 holes. But this would follow completion of the swimming pool and clubhouse improvement projects, Dr. Underwood told the stockholders.

Brownsville Man Arrested on Numbers Charge

Joseph Suba, 35, of Brownsville, was arrested on a numbers charge yesterday to kickoff the return to the Uniontown state police barracks of Sgt. H. M. Jaynes, who in previous service in the Uniontown district gained a reputation as a "racket buster."

Suba has been charged with operating and maintaining a lottery by state police.

At a hearing before Alderman William F. Whitby, of Uniontown, Suba entered a plea of innocent but was held for court under $1,000 bond.

State police said money and numbers slips were confiscated in the arrest.

The accused was convicted of a similar offense in late 1954. He was sentenced to pay a $300 fine and costs or serve a six months jail term — and paid the fine.

Donora Delays One Way Street Plan

Donora Borough Council has decided to delay its plan to make McKean and Thompson Avenues one-way streets.

The traffic plan was referred to a special committee for further study after a delegation of Thompson Ave. residents this week protested the move.

Council had intended to make McKean one-way north and Thompson one-way south beginning Sunday.

A petition, signed by 150 Thompson Ave. residents, said the rerouted bus and truck traffic would constitute a "hazard" on the "residential street."

Dio Associate Refuses to Talk To Senate Probers

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UP) — New York labor racketeer Johnny Dio hit a news photographer on the ear today at the Senate Office Building where he was on call to appear before the Labor Rackets Committee. The photographer was Stanley Tretich of United Press News Photos.

WASHINGTON (UP)—A husky henchman of New York labor rackets boss Johnny Dio refused to tell Senate investigators today how he became a top official of three "paper local" Teamster unions.

Sidney Hodes, a big, pudgy man with heavy black-rimmed glasses, appeared before the Senate Labor Rackets Committee prior to the scheduled testimony of Dio, described as a friend of Teamster Union Vice President James R. Hoffa and kingpin of New York's labor rackets.

The committee harbored small hope that Dio, described as a former associate of the old Murder, Inc., mob, would prove any more talkative than Hodes or other underlings who gave only their names and addresses before setting up a steady chant of Fifth Amendment refusals to testify.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Hodes was "a close associate of Johnny Dio." He said Hodes "played an important part" in setting up the paper locals of the Teamsters Union—an action which the committee said was done with Dio's assistance to help Hoffa rig an election and win control of all teamsters in New York.

The committee also summoned three officers of the "paper" locals—Nate Gordon of Teamster Local 651, and Abe Brier and Sydney Hodes of Local 362.

Brier and Hodes were listed as officials of Local 649 of the AFL United Auto Workers in New York before turning up as officers of Teamster Local 362. The UAW-AFL local was dominated by Dio, also known as Dioguardi.

Kennedy indicated this was typical of the switch whereby Dio, as New York director of the UAW-AFL, shifted his henchmen into the Teamsters to staff the "paper locals" set up in November, 1955.

Khrushchev Says America Within Nuclear Range

BERLIN (UP) — Soviet Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev warned the United States today it is within range of "present" nuclear rockets. He cautioned the London disarmament conference to remember this before rejecting Soviet proposals.

"With the present development of rocket weapons no nation is safe from attack," he said. "U. S. statesmen should think about this.

"Distance will not protect any nation from the effects of atomic and hydrogen bombs. Those statesmen should think about this who reject disarmament agreements."

Khrushchev's blistering remarks on Soviet weapon development were an old tune, but he offered a new variation in linking rocket progress to the London disarmament talks.

One Russian demand in London is for a total ban on nuclear weapons, which the West rejects as unenforceable.

Says None Safe

Khrushchev, speaking for two hours to East Germany's powerless puppet parliament, repeated earlier Soviet statements that no country is safe at this stage of rocket development. He said in any war today large areas of the world would be turned into desert.

"Those circles in West Germany who are disciples of a new war should think about this," he said.

"British and French statesmen and statesmen of other nations should think about this. With the present development of rocket weapons no nation is safe from attack."

Khrushchev and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl implicitly admitted the Communists could never win any free elections even in the Red-run East Zone.

Fined $25 for Trying to Shoot Estranged Wife

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A Jeannette, Pa., man got off with a $25 fine today after he was arrested on charges of trying to shoot his estranged wife in her Pittsburgh apartment, Wednesday night.

Police said William G. Fichtner, of 500 Michigan Ave., Jeannette, tripped on a rug as he fired a shot from Japanese war souvenir rifle. The bullet missed his wife, Florence, who grabbed the weapon from Fichtner as he stumbled to the floor of the North Side dwelling.

Jailed overnight on charges of felonious assault with intent to kill the husband won his wife's sympathy at a hearing before a police magistrate this morning. When she refused to press the more serious charges, he was fined for pointing firearms.

According to police, Mrs. Fichtner ran from the second floor apartment after the shot was fired and tossed the weapon, a 35-caliber rifle on the roof of a nearby house.

Officers said two men were in the apartment when Fichtner came in, but one of them, identified as a Jeannette resident, fled when he saw the husband carrying a rifle.

West Seeking Quick End to London Talks

LONDON (UP)—The West will press for adjournment of the London disarmament conference if Russia delays its reply to the Western "package" plan, official sources said today.

The Western delegates hoped to complete the presentation of their final disarmament proposal by the end of next week. They were expected to concentrate on the open skies portion of the plan at today's session.

U.S. Delegate Harold E. Stassen said Wednesday the five-power conference did not realize "how close" it was to reaching a workable agreement on partial, first-step disarmament.

A report the U.N. subcommittee made to the United Nations on Aug. 1 was to be published in New York today.

The last major Western plan still to be presented formally at the London conference was a reported compromise with Russia on the banning of nuclear weapons from use in warfare. Informed sources said the Western compromise would ban hydrogen and atom weapons except in self-defense.

The Western powers have rejected the Russian demand for a total ban on nuclear weapons because it depends upon its nuclear strength to counter-balance Russia's superiority in conventional weapons and manpower.

Gus Brickner Heads for Home

CALAIS, France (UP)— Gus Brickner of Charleroi, Pa., starts home today after seeing his life's dream of swimming the English Channel smashed.

(Brickner cabled his family in Charleroi today that he has arrived in London en route home. He is due at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport tomorrow at 1:20 p. m.)

The 45 - year - old grandfather called it quits Wednesday five hours and 48 minutes after he plunged in at nearby Cap Gris Nez. He was nearly half way across the channel.

Cramps, the nemesis of many cold water swimmers, brought his twice-postponed attempt to a halt.

"I was helpless from the waist down," he said. "The boat crew had to lasso me and haul me out of the water."

Brickner said the only time he experienced similar cramps was in Lake Ontario in 1954.

"I don't know why it happened. The water was nice, about 52 degrees, and not choppy," he said.

The half-paralyzed swimmer had to be carried ashore in Calais when his boat docked at 1 p.m. (8 a.m. e.d.t.

Steelworkers Local President Denies Ballot Box Stuffing

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The president of a United Steelworkers local said today if there was any ballot box stuffing at his headquarters during a recent election, USW President David J. McDonald seemingly "got the wrost of it."

Stanley Skalniak, president of Local 1843, at the Hazelwood plant of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., termed the charges "ridiculous."

A member of Local 1843, George E. Crosby, 38, contended in a notorized statement Wednesday that he had "stuffed" a ballot box in favor of McDonald in promise of a better job, during an election for union officers last Feb. 12.

Crosby also said he saw money being given to workers by local officers to stuff ballots for McDonald.

Skalniak, in reply said McDonald "lost our local by more than three-to-one" to Donald C. Rarick and added that Crosby's contention was "ridiculous and George Crosby knows it." Rarick is chairman of the insurgent Dues Protest Committee.

"Our local has the ballots, the official returns and the records," Skalniak said. "All of this material is intact and we have so informed the McClellan committee (Senate Rackets Committee). In a registered letter to chief counsel (Robert) Kennedy last Friday, we assured him that all mentioned records shall be retained intact for your possible review until you notify us otherwise."

Attorney James Ashton, counsel for the Dues Protest Committee, said Wednesday that about 750 ballots marked for Rarick were dumped on the porch of his Glassport, Pa. home following the February election. He said the Senate Rackets Committee was shown the ballots and that they are in his possession.

The Senate committee has asked the USW's 2,500 locals to retain all ballots and voting records until further notice.

A spokesman for McDonald said in New York Wednesday that the USW president was not involved "in any way, shape or form" in the alleged ballot box stuffing. He refused further comment. McDonald was in New York conferring with industry representatives on details of contract provisions that became effective Sept. 1.

Co. D Men Promoted At Indiantown Gap

INDIANTOWN GAP (Special to The Daily Independent)— Shortly after Monessen Co. D, 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, arrived at Indiantown Gap Sunday for a two-week encampment, Commander Capt. Harry B. Davis, announced the promotions on nine enlisted men.

Promoted to sergeant were Elmer B. Cornell, and James A. Hileman, of Belle Vernon; John Klidas, of Monessen; Thomas E. Mimidis, of R. D. 1, Belle Vernon, and William Ogelthorpe and Leonard Seemuth, of Charleroi.

New corporals are Ronnie DuJordon and Edward Yadich, both of Charleroi, and Albert Trozzo, of Belle Vernon.

Sunday the company officers attended an "officers call" along with 700 other officers and were given a briefing on encampment procedure by Major General Henry K. Fluck, division commander. He emphasized good training and safety precautions.

Co. D's drill squad, coached by Sgt. Lloyd Hite, of R. D., Belle Vernon, has been in training in preparation for a competitive drill review with four other units.

The squad is composed of: Sgts. Mimidis and Ogelthorpe; Cpl. DuJordan; Privates First Class Robert Wozniak, William Micenko, Frank Kolosky, Everett McElfresh, Donald McBurnie and James J. Sneith and Pvt. Roger Lind.

The local unit is also taking part in the division softball competition. Winners of 1st Battalion honors last year, Co. D, coached by M-Sgt. Peter Freado, is expected to be strong again this year.

Company recruits are being given special training courses this week by 1st Sgt. William Cousins to acquaint them with basic infantry and basic weapons procedures.

State Moves on Manu-Mine

Asks Court To Name Receiver

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission today asked Dauphin County Court to put the Manu-Mine Research and Development Co., Reading, into the hands of a receiver.

Harold E. Kohn, counsel for the commission, said the appointment of a receiver was asked "to preserve and protect" Manu-Mine assets, against which the commission has a suit pending for $1,300,000 which it paid the firm for work in connection with the construction of the Northeastern Extension in 1955.

In a companion action, the commission set Aug. 28 in the courthouse for an inquiry into the firm's financial position.

The firm was named by the state in a criminal action against five former Turnpike Commission officials and two Manu-Mine officers as the instrumentality in "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

Officials Convicted

Manu-Mine president Charles W. Stickler Jr. and former vice president Clayton A. Landsidle were convicted two weeks ago of fraud and conspiracy in connection with the negotiation of a multi-million dollar contract with the commission in 1955.

The two were named in the petition along with former commission chairman Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale, who was convicted of conspiracy and misconduct in office; Frederick G. McGarvin, Manu-Mine counsel and a member of its board of directors, and Guy H. Dalpra, company director.

Kohn said the appointment of a receiver is necessary because "from its organization in March, 1951...substantially all of Manu-Mine's revenue has been obtained from the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission as the result of unlawful, wicked and malicious conspiracy and fraud."

Diverted Sums

In addition, Kohn said, Stickler "diverted substantial sums from Manu-Mine for his personal use... including payments for furniture in his house, a trip to Hawaii for his family and a mink coat for his wife."

Kohn argued that the commission is entitled to an order "preventing any further dissipation or distribution" of the firm's assets pending final disposition of this case."

The Aug. 28 hearing was scheduled under a right previously granted by the court, which allows the commission to conduct an investigation of the firm's finances.

Civil Rights

ing its first civil rights measure in 82 years.

All of the no votes were cast by hard-core members of the Dixie bloc fighting the measure, plus liberal Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse (Ore.) who called the bill a sham bearing "little more than the title." Voting for it was a crushing coalition of 43 Republicans and 29 Democrats.

The Senate bill provides for a bipartisan commission with subpena powers to investigate voting rights violations; a new assistant attorney general to handle rights cases; repeal of an old law empowering use of federal troops to enforce Negro rights; and power for the attorney general to seek injunctions to halt threatened voting rights violations.

One of the major Senate changes from the House bill was addition of an amendment requiring jury trials in all criminal cases. This would apply not only to violators of voting rights injunctions but of all injunctions obtained under federal laws. Judges, could, however, impose civil penalties aimed merely at securing compliance with the injunctions without juries.

Basically a right-to-vote bill shorn of stiffer features by Dixie Democrats and "moderate" Northerners of both parties, it was sent to the House without the confidently expected Southern filibuster.

In fact five Southerners voted for it—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and his fellow Texas Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough; both of Tennessee's Democrats, Estes Kefauver and Albert Gore; and Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida.

Smathers, who originally fought the bill with the Southern bloc, said it had been made "sensible and moderate" and there was "great need to move this problem outside the political arena."

The finished product was to be carried across the Capitol for presentation to the House some time today. Indications were it would lie untouched on the speaker's desk until early next week while plans jell on how to handle it.

Spy

el's arrest on espionage charges. They described him as a quiet, meek, "seedy-looking," arty person.

The proprietor of an electronic equipment store, on the ground floor of the building in which Abel's studio was situated, recalled the Russian had purchased shortwave radio antennas.

Named as co-conspirators with Hayhanen were Aleksander Mikhailovich Korotkov, Mikhail Svirin and Vitali G. Pavlov, all of whom are reported to be in the Soviet Union. Pavlov was identified as the former second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa who was expelled in 1946 after a Red spy network was uncovered in Canada.

Korotkov also had been identified as a co-conspirator in the Soble spy case.

William F. Tompkins, assistant U.S. attorney general in charge of the Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice, said Abel and his co-conspirators transmitted defense secrets to the Soviet Union by means of containers fashioned from nails, bolts, batteries, pencils, cuff links and other objects.

Espionage meetings were held, the government said, in Quincy, Mass.; Salida, Colo.; New Hyde Park, N.Y.; the Newark, N.J., station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and in various parts of New York City.

Believed Top Spy

"This is as professional and intricate an operation as we have ever worked on," Tompkins said. The government district attorney said it was "reasonable to assume" that Abel was the top-ranking Soviet spy in the United States.

In addition to transmitting defense secrets to Moscow, the government said Abel and other agents had set up radio transmitting and receiving posts, designed to furnish the Soviet Union with vital information in the event of war.

Planning Commission Wants Rt. 40 Improved

The Fayette County Planning and Zoning Commission last night drew up a set of recommendations dealing with U. S. Route 40.

One of the recommendations dealt with the proposal that either U. S. Route 40 between Washington, Pa., and Hancock, Md., be included in the interstate network, or that the highway be developed into four lanes with limited and controlled access.

A memorandum by Edward Heiselberg, planning director, said in part:

"We think that one of the functions of the interstate highway system should be to create desirable locations for new land uses where they are needed. Particularly is this true in the encouragement of the location of new manufacturing plants in labor surplus areas.

"Fayette County is a labor surplus area and needs new manufacturing plants. We are of the opinion that the proposed detour of U. S. 40 traffic around Fayette County will seriously affect our program of obtaining new industries.

"The items having principal priority in Fayette County are the improvement of the portion from the ridge of Summit Mountain to Hopwood, the Brownsville high-level bridge, and the bypass around Uniontown."

Other recommendations by the commission included:

(1) For U. S. Route 119, a four-lane divided highway from Connellsville to New Stanton, a bypass around Uniontown, and a four-lane divided highway between Uniontown and Morgantown.

(2) Completion of Pennsylvania Route 51 as a four-lane Highway between Uniontown and Pittsburgh, bypassing Uniontown and connecting with U. S. Routes 40 and 119, and Pennsylvania Route 21.

(3) A new interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike at Laurelville between New Stanton and Donegal to alleviate the necessity of vehicles, especially trucks, using the three-mile hill east of the Donegal interchange.

(4) Improvement of surfacing, alignment, and grade of Route 711 in the urban areas of Connellsville, Fayette City, Belle Vernon, possibly bypassing these urban areas.

(5) Improvement of Pennsylvania Route 166 between Brownsville and Point Marion.

(6) Construction of a new four-lane road between Brownsville and the intersection of Routes 711 and 51.

(7) Improvement of Pennsylvania Routes 381 and 281.

The commission also approved, with minor stipulations, the development of the Washington Heights area near Belle Vernon, and discussed the proposed elementary school for Connellsville Twp. and the progress of an urban planning assistance grant for the county.

Ex Sailor Admits Stabbing in Plainfiled, N. J.

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (UP) — An 18-year-old ex-sailor today confessed stabbing to death a young mother of two, police said.

The sailor lives in an apartment adjacent to that of the victim.

Police identified the suspect as James Albert Mount, who lives with his widower father across the hallway from the apartment of the victim, Mrs. Ruth Petrosky, 26, who formerly lived in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Detectives said they arrested Mount at 5 a.m. while he was sleeping. Mrs. Petrosky earlier was found stabbed to death in the basement where she had been disposing of refuse.

Police said they found a knife—believed to be the murder weapon—in Mount's apartment. A pair of bloodstained trousers—also believed owned by Mount—was found shortly before the arrest along an embankment of the Central Railroad of New Jersey here.

Police said Mount confessed the slaying after his arrest. He was reported to have been discharged from the Navy shortly after enlisting.

Mother Tells of Alleged Assault

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A 21-year-old mother of two children told police today a prowler assaulted her in her Mt. Washington apartment early today.

Mrs. Mathilda Martin, 21, who is separated from her husband, said the man threatened her with a blackjack and knife, saying he would harm her sons, aged 2 and 1, if she made an outcry. The terrorized woman said the intruder remained in her room for an hour and then fled.

Denies Steel Price Boost Will Set off New Round of Inflation

By ARTHUR W. ARUNDEL

WASHINGTON (UP) — U. S. Steel Corp. Chairman Roger M. Blough today denounced as "sheer economic superstition" any notion that a rise in the price of steel could set off a new round of inflation.

Blough said the "myth" that steel prices are too high conceivably "has been born of a natural desire to find some convenient scapegoat upon which to blame our inflationary troubles."

He said steel now is selling at an average price of about 7¾ cents a pound and termed this "something of a modern economic miracle."

The chairman of the world's largest private steel company said "it is impossible to argue" that big-business profits "have contributed to inflation at all." He suggested that the sources of inflation should be sought in increased wages and other benefits to employes.

Blough made his remarks in a statement prepared for delivery before the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee looking into the recent $6 a ton increase in the price of steel.

U.S. Steel boosted its prices June 26 barely 24 hours after President Eisenhower appealed to business and labor to hold down price and wage increases to help put the brakes on the inflationary spiral.

U.S. Steel's action, quickly followed by other major steel concerns, was termed by some congressmen as "irresponsible" and as helping to feed the fuels of inflation.

Blough told the subcommittee it has become a "national folklore" that a rise in steel prices will quickly affect the "sensitive pocketbook of every man, woman and child in America."

"No one company, no one industry and no one union can alone stop the march of inflation," he said.

U.S. Steel cut its prices and held its wages in May, 1948, in a "noble experiment" to check inflation, he said, but other companies raised prices and other unions got wage hikes.

"We might as well have tried to stop an express train with a peashooter," the steel executive said.

Plays Minor Role

Blough said the price of steel and other industrial products has played only a "minor role" in the cost of living increases since 1952 while the cost of services has risen sharply since that time.

"All the money that the American people spend for steel in a year is so small in comparison to their total expenditures for all other things they buy that any change in the price of steel is overwhelmed by the price movement of other goods and services which make up the average family's budget," he said.

Blough called on critics of steel prices to realize the "intense competition" that his industry faces from aluminum, plastic, fiberglass and other steel substitutes.

He said that while U.S. Steel is fourth in sales among the nation's 500 largest manufacturing companies, it ranks 123rd in profits and 243rd in profits on invested capital.

House Republicans See Defeat Of Democratic Nuclear Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — House Republicans today predicted they had the votes to turn back a Democratic proposal to have the government build several nuclear reactors designed to produce electricity.

GOP members, with strong White House backing, denounced the Democratic plan as socialistic.

The plan was included in a $259,230,000 bill to authorize continuance of the administration's atomic construction program for defense and peace.

Other congressional news:

McElroy: Senate reaction appeared generally favorable to President Eisenhower's appointment of soap manufacturer Neil T. McElroy to be secretary of defense. Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said he was "very favorably impressed." Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) praised him as "a top-notch businessman and an excellent administrator.

Academy: The House has approved funds to let the Air Force Academy construct a controversial 19-spired modernistic aluminum chapel. The money was included in a $1,581,590,587 appropriations bill for financing military construction projects and assorted minor government programs. The bill was cut $279,158,380—about 15 per cent—below what President Eisenhower requested.

Postal: House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) planned fast action on two bills affecting the Post Office Department. One is the administration-backed postage rate increase measure. The other is the administration-opposed pay increase for postal workers. McCormack said the measures, cleared Wednesday by the House Rules Committee, would be called up for a vote Friday.

PUC Dismisses Water Rate Complaints

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has dismissed complaints against rates charged by the Cowanshannock Water Co., Indiana, after finding that the firm operates at a loss.

The company, serving 567 flat rate customers in the coal mine area of Armstrong County, put an official schedule of rates in effect for the first time last Feb. 1 that replaced a $1 a month charge per house.

Protests were filed against the tariff which set up a "lawful" charge of $2.50 a month for houses without bathrooms and $3 for dwellings with baths.

qe PUC said an investigation revealed that the company was operating at a $1,127 annual loss, even with the higher rates. The company said it was losing customers because area mines were being shut down and residents were moving away.

The firm provides service in Cowanshannock Twp., covering the Margaret, NuMine, Yatesboro and Sagamore areas. Public fire protection service is furnished without charge.

Although he was reminded that these are public funds, Rankin said:

"You'll have to see Mr. Weiss."

Weiss was out of the City today and could not be reached for comment on his appointment as judge or when he intends to relinquish his other positions.

Two Monessen Explorer Scouts At Camp near Cimarron, N. M.

Ten Explorer Scouts, including two from Monessen, Ralph Krasik and Jerome Krause, are on a 12-day trip at the Philmont Scout Ranch near Cimarron, New Mexico. The group left from Greensburg by bus Sunday.

The first day at the ranch was to include a medical recheck, tour of the ranch and training center, and a visit to the Kit Carson Museum.

After breakfast on the second day they will take a bus ride to one of the three base camps, and make a tour of the camp craft demonstration area. Then they go to the quartermaster to draw tentage and camping gear. They will make camp and receive instruction in axemanship, fire building and cooking. The evening will be spent receiving instructions on the use of a compass and map reading.

On the third day there will be a morning session on back packing, foot care and water purification. In the afternoon they will take a horseback ride into the mountains, then an evening campfire with fun and inspiration.

Program Planning

The fourth day will include instruction in program planning after which the group plans their own schedule for the rest of their stay at Philmont.

Then off they go on the trail of their choice, spending one night perhaps at a trail camp, another up a canyon or on a mountain top, then dropping into a camp where the commissary replenishes their supplies. Or they may choose to go to a camp and stay there, using it as a base for exploration of the area, sending a crew back to the commissary for supplies.

At each base there are hot showers and facilities for laundry and mail from home.

They will spend 12 days on the trail after which they will return by bus, arriving at Greensburg on August 19 at 6:43 p. m.

It was a routine business session for the local lodge, and Marshall gave a brief talk. Charles Cathers, of New Kensington, was also a guest at the meeting.

Plans were completed by the men to attend the Jaycee All-Star football game next Tuesday evening in Pittsburgh.

Marshall was accompanied to Monessen by his wife, who visited with Mrs. A. C. Laneve, of Sixth St., during the evening.

Chamber Urges Industries to Look to State

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Chamber of Commerce reported today Pennsylvania's business tax "climate" is improving and urged industries to take a "fresh look" at plant possibilities in the state.

The chamber, in a four-page tax memo to business, cited these legislative gains made during the past five years as favorable to industry. They included exemption of machinery and equipment from local realty taxes, enactment of a broad-base sales and use tax, and the manufacturers' exemption from capital stock-franchise taxes.

"Before these steps were taken our state tax system was unattractive to many businessmen seeking locations for new or expanded plant facilities because of the absence of a broad-base tax, combined with unusually heavy reliance on corporate taxes," the chamber said.

However, the chamber report said further tax reforms are needed in the near future. It said two business "nuisance" taxes, the coporate excise and corporate loans taxes, should be repealed and the decrease from 6 to 5 per cent in the corporate net income tax should go into effect on schedule in 1960.

Billy Graham Offers Cure for Juvenile Problem

NEW YORK (UP)—Juvenile delinquency is a problem in America because "we offer youth nothing but amusement and coddling and not enough direction and authority," Billy Graham said Wednesday night.

The 38-year-old evangelist told a Madison Square Garden audience of 16,000 that New York and other cities face a teen gang problem because parents don't give their children "something to dedicate themselves to."

"Young people become bored with all the amusements and coddling lavished on them," he said, "and so they form gangs."

"In Germany, Hitler got the youth . . . to march proudly under the swastika . . . Mussolini got the youth of Italy to follow him in black shirts. The Communists (give their youth a sense of dedication) the same way.

"In America, let's give our youth Christ and watch them march under his proud banner, and the heart of the teen-age problem will be solved.

The revivalist, who will devote all of his New York crusade sermons next week to the teen gang problems in this city, said that often juvenile delinquency is the fault of scoffing parents.

"Older people don't understand the problems of youth," he said. "Young people fall in love and their parents shrug it off as puppy love. But it's real love to the puppy."

District Speakers At Camp Meeting

Among the speakers at a special week of services at the Lincoln Beach Camp Meeting of the Christian & Missionary Alliance Church are Carol VanBremen, of Lynnwood, and a former pastor of the Methodist Church in Monessen, the Rev. Ted Voorhees.

Miss VanBremen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanBremen, is a missionary appointee to Africa, and is scheduled to sail this month. She has been conducting services all this week at the camp.

The Rev. Mr. Voorhees, formerly a chaplain at Rockview State Prison, is now pastor of Good Samaritan Congregation at Western State Penitentiary. He will speak at a special service Sunday at 3 p. m.

A youth service will be conducted on Saturday evening, with the Rev Ralph Godwin, of Pittsburgh as the main speaker.

The closing services on Sunday at 3 p. m. will be in charge of the Rev. Ralph Greenridge, of the Bronx, N. Y.

Mrs. Eisenhower Just Fine, Says President

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP)—The operation undergone by Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower Tuesday was a hysterectomy—the removal of the uterus.

The operation is commonly found necessary for women after they reach middle age.

Medical authorities said today a hysterectomy is a major operation involving "all the risks of major operations."

However, they said the after effects of a needed hysterectomy on a middle aged woman are "nothing but beneficial." They said patients normally take about a month to recuperate.

They said hysterectomies are found necessary for a number of reasons. But he said the principal reason is the presence of benign or malignant tumor.

The White House reported after Mrs. Eisenhower underwent surgery at Walter Reed Army Medical Center that no malignant condition was involved.

President Eisenhower visited the 60-year-old First Lady Wednesday night at Walter Reed for about an hour and a quarter. As he left he said when asked how she felt:

"Fine, oh, fine."

He said with a chuckle at his news conference earlier in the day that her disposition probably match the cherry medical reports. He said her doctors expected her to be able to accompany him on a vacation to Newport, R.I., after Congress adjourns later this month.

MAMIE'S SURGEON—Col. Humbert L. Riva, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Riva, of 524 Fallowfield Ave., Charleroi, was the specialist who performed the successful surgery on Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C.

Huge New Ore Ship Planned

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Shenango Furnace Co. of Pittsburgh announced today plans to build a new ore-carrying ship with a 25,000-ton capacity at a cost of approximately 8 million dollars.

W. P. Snyder III, Shenango president, said the vessel will be constructed by the American Shipbuilding Co. of Cleveland. A contract for the construction will be signed today.

Snyder said the ship will be built at the Cleveland firm's Toledo yards with completion expected in the spring of 1959. The vessel, which will be manned by a crew of 38, will be 710 feet long and 75 feet wide, and displace 32,210 long tons. It will have a speed of about 16 miles per hour, powered by an 8,500 horsepower steam turbine, gear driven power plant.

The new freighter also will be equipped to operate in fresh and salt water so it can make trips to loading points of the Labrador and Quebec ore fields, Snyder said.

Years Away

"Upon completion of the St. Lawrence waterway, still several years away," Snyder said, "the new ship will be able to load about 25,000 tons of ore. Until present channel and lock conditions are changed, cargoes will be limited to about 23,000 tons."

The freighter, as yet unnamed, will be engaged like the remainder of the Shenango fleet in bringing iron ore mined on Snyder Mining Co. properties in Minnesota to ore docks in Conneaut, Cleveland and Ashtabula, Ohio.

Shenango built its first freighter in 1906. Its present fleet consists of the Shenango with a 12,000-ton capacity, and the Schoonmaker and W. P. Snyder Jr., both with 15,300 tons.

Youth Shot During 'Mock' Russian Roulette

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Robert K. Medve, 19, shot in the head by an "empty" gun during a reported mock Russian roulette game, was to undergo surgery today for removal of the bullet.

Medve, of Pittsburgh, was shot while a group of his friends were "fooling around" with the .22 caliber revolver, and after one youth pulled the trigger without incident while it was aimed at his own head.

Michael Kline, 17, Munhall, has been charged with the shooting. The charges against Kline were filed by Medve's parents after their son refused to take legal action against his friend. Kline was turned over to Juvenile Court.

After the shooting, the group said someone in a passing car had fired the shot. Later, they admitted playing with the weapon in a pretended game of Russian roulette, police said.

Authorities said Joseph Grieb, a witness at the shooting in nearby West Mifflin Twp., gave this account of the accident:

Medve had a gang of fellows in his car when one of them pulled out a revolver.

The gun was loaded and Grieb fired a couple shots into the ground. Kline, who was sitting in the back seat, asked to see the gun. The group had been talking about Russian roulette and Kline aimed what he thought was an empty gun at his own head and pulled the trigger. Nothing happened.

Then, according to Grieb's account as related by police, Kline placed the gun against the back of Medve's head and pulled the trigger. The bullet was discharged.

Pittsburgh Marine Under Arrest

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UP)— A former Pittsburgh Marine who allegedly fled a Quantico, Va. guardhouse two years ago in a stolen car was held Wednesday in $5,000 bail after arraignment here.

Donald Water Schacht, 20, was arrested in his residence in Hoboken by FBI agents Tuesday night.

A two count indictment originally returned by a federal grand jury in Alexandria, Va., Dec. 5, 1955, charged him with larceny on a government reservation and interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle.

The FBI said Schacht escaped from Quantico where he was confined on Sept. 7, 1955, stole the car of another serviceman and abandoned it in Washington, D.C.

Belle Vernon R. D. Driver Enters Plea

George A. Dacko, of Belle Vernon, R. D. 2, entered a plea of guilty in the office of Fayette County District Attorney Joseph E. Kovach, when he admitted failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

The prosecutor, Belle Vernon Police Chief Vincent Isenberg, stated that three vehicles were damaged in the accident last month on Third St., Belle Vernon.

Dacko was apprehended after striking the parked cars.

Bloom Continues Leader Attack

GREENVILLE, Pa. (UP)—Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom, stumping the state to spur registrations for the municipal and county elections next November, continued to criticize the Democratic administration.

Bloom charged Gov. George M. Leader gave only "lip service" to the right-to-know legislation passed by the Legislature at the request of Pennsylvania's newspaper publishers and editors.

"Gov. Leader is ready to go to any length to keep the people from knowing how his administration is spending their taxes," Bloom said.

Addressing the Mercer County GOP picnic, the Republican leader asserted, "If he really believed in the people's right to know, he would not have vetoed every piece of legislation giving the same rights to the General Assembly."

Stock Market Almost Hits Record High on July 12

By ELMER C. WALZER

NEW YORK (UP) — The stock market all but made a record high on July 12 when the industrial average came within 0.28 point of its peak set on April 6, 1956.

And it would have gone through to a new record with a bang had it not been for the fact that Dow-Jones substituted international paper for Loew's on July 3, 1956.

That fact was brought out today in Investor's Reader, publication of the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

The magazine notes that Loew's has eased only 2 points since the Dow-Jones average hit its 1956 high. International Paper has fallen 28 points since then.

"Had the switch not been made (or had the timing been different)," says Investor's Reader, "the entire Dow-Jones industrials would have been nearly five points higher and thus would have smashed to a decisive new all-time peak in mid-July."

Any Difference?

Now suppose the average had gone through to a new peak, would that have made a difference in the market's performance? The theory is that if a new high is set the market is getting into a new bull phase.

But there's another proviso in the operation of the Dow theory. That is that the railroads must confirm the move of the industrial average. They didn't and hence a new bull spurt was not confirmed anyhow.

Investor's Reader doesn't draw any conclusions from its observation. It does note, however, that since the record top was set in the industrials to the present time there are exactly 15 gains and 15 losses in the issues making up the 30 industrials used to compute the average.

And that, it is noted, presents a study in selectivity.

The biggest declines are in Allied Chemical, DuPont, International Paper, American Telephone, and Johns - Manville. The best gains are in Eastman Kodak, Goodyear and U.S. Steel.

Average in Line

One thing that the substitution did for Dow-Jones was to keep the average in line with other market measurements.

Standard & Poor's index o f500 stocks also missed setting an all-time high. That index made its record on Aug. 2, 1956 instead of April 6, 1956. On the Aug. 2 date the DJ industrials came within one-tenth of one point of making a new top.

Not a few experts are hoping that the market will make another try at a new top this month, but no one seems to be willing to bet money on it.

Young Democratic Picnic Aug. 21

Police Promise To Protest Critic Of Queen's English

LONDON (UP) — Manchester police organized "anti - slap" squads today and posted extra guards to protect Lord Altrincham when he appears there on a nationwide program to defend his criticism of Queen Elizabeth II.

The 33-year-old peer who was slapped Tuesday by an elderly ex-sergeant faces 120 young Britons tonight, some of them angry, to defend his stand against their questioning. Police said they were determined to keep the fight a verbal one.

Granada, an independent television contractor, which is staging the Manchester show, placed four guards outside its television house to guard against a repetition of the face-slapping. It also called in police to handle the expected crowds.

"My views are obviously such that the young people of this country should have a chance to discuss them with me," Altrincham said. "The tougher the questions they ask, the more pleased I shall be."

British Forces Advance Into Rebel Stronghold

BAHREIN, Persian Gulf (UP)—British-led forces advanced virtually unopposed today into rebel territory in the sun-seared, hills of Oman.

The mud-hut villages of Karsha and Rada surrendered without delay to British troops and barefoot tribesmen advancing by camel, jeep and armored car across the desert wastes toward the rebel "capital" at Nizwa.

A communique from advance headquarters at Izz described resistance as "slight"—presumably meaning scattered, ineffective rifle fire.

British jet fighters carrying double loads of rockets took off at dawn from Sharja to police the air over the battlefield. At noon, the only target they had found worthy of attack was an abandoned army camp along the line of the advance.

The first point at which any notable resistance was expected was Firz, a partially - fortified town three miles from Nizwa.

Loyal leaders expected to overwhelm Firz today, then rest their troops overnight before advancing on Nizwa early Friday.

A high official in Muscat, capital of the British-supported sultan who is the principal target of the rebels, predicted that the revolt will be crushed by the end of this week.

Schedule Hearing For McSorley's Son

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A hearing in morals court was scheduled Friday for George Franklin McSorley Jr., 20, son of suspended Turnpike Commissioner G. Franklin McSorley.

Police charged McSorley had removed a purse containing $55 from a woman's apartment on July 31. The University of Pittsburgh student was arrested Tuesday night while attending a Pirate baseball game with his father.

Young McSorley, also arrested on a prowling charge early Monday, was dismissed after a magistrate's hearing.

The Photo Ban Case Reviewed to Date

JUDGE Wallace S. Gourley of the U. S. District Court at Pittsburgh has upheld the judicial edict against taking news pictures in the Westmoreland County courthouse at Greensburg.

Judge Gourley's action is the latest episode in the long and complicated litigation which has resulted from this unusual and, in our view, unwarranted and arbitrary assertion of judicial power. For nearly three years this case has been contested in both the state and federal courts, and the Westmoreland County rule has been upheld in each instance.

The Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, which has borne the cost of the litigation on behalf of the Greensburg Tribune-Review and the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, has been striving for some final determination as to whether the three county judges who imposed the photo ban really have power which their rule asserts.

The PNPA now has to determine whether to appeal Judge Gourley's decision to higher federal courts, including ultimately the U. S. Supreme Court, which of course would be the last resort.

The Daily Independent has reported this complicated litigation in detail from the outset and has discussed it frequently in its editorial columns. But because we regard the issues involved as so important in the public interest, it may be useful to review the facts and add some further comment.

* * *

THE PHOTO BAN originally was imposed by Judge Edward G. Bauer, who was presiding at the time over the murder trial of John Wesley Wable, the "Turnpike Killer". Judge Bauer was later joined in the rule by Judges Richard D. Laird and John M. O'Connell.

The effect of the rule in the first instance was to prevent the making of news pictures, not only in the courtroom proper while the court was in session, but anywhere in the courthouse for any purposes.

When the rule was challenged, the judges modified it somewhat, and as it now stands, it prohibits the taking of pictures anywhere within 40 feet of a courtroom door.

The newspapers first challenged the rule by asking Judge Gourley for an injunction against its enforcement. He granted this temporarily but advised that the remedy should be sought first in the state courts.

The State Supreme Court, however, refused to consider the matter unless the rule had been violated, somebody punished and an actual case was presented.

Although they were reluctant deliberately to defy a court, the newspapers had no alternative but to arrange a test case. So the Tribune-Review and the Post-Gazette caused pictures to be taken and published of Wable as he was proceeding through the courthouse corridors to and from Judge Bauer's courtroom where he was sentenced to death.

The pictures were taken without creating any commotion — in fact, deputy sheriffs escorting Wable did not know pictures had been taken until they were published in the newspapers. And the court was not even in session at the time.

Nevertheless, the three judges cited the executives and employes of the two newspapers for criminal contempt and sentenced them to pay fines and serve jail sentences.

On appeal to the State Supreme Court, the jail sentences were abrogated, but the convictions were upheld largely on the ground that the county court was obligated to protect Wable's "privacy" while he was in custody.

In a vigorous dissenting opinion, Justice Musmanno denounced the rule of court as an infringement of the right and duty of a free press to report judicial proceedings.

Having exhausted their remedies in the state courts, the newspapers have returned to the federal courts to question the rule on constitutional grounds. Which brings us again to Judge Gourley's action.

* * *

READING the news accounts of Judge Gourley's opinion, it seemed to us that he has dealt more with extraneous issues than with the serious constitutional questions which the case raises. And he is obviously disposed to resolve any doubts in favor of judicial power and against the right of the people to be informed, by modern news techniques, of the proceedings of the courts.

Like the State Supreme Court, Judge Gourley dwells, for example, on the so-called "right of privacy". But in reality, what "privacy" is left to a man who has been convicted of murder and is about to be sentenced to death?

Even if there is such a right, it is a judicial invention, whereas the right of the press to report the news is a constitutional guarantee. Surely where there is a conflict between an ambiguous and unwritten private right and one of the cardinal principles of the Constitution, the latter must prevail.

Again, Judge Gourley speaks of the "dignity of the court" and the "orderly administration of justice".

But how can the dignity of a court be offended by a news picture when some of the most solemn and sacred events in the lives and men and nations are regularly photographed with no loss of dignity? It even seems to us that a court loses some dignity when it puts an iron curtain between itself and the public.

As for the "orderly administration of justice", could Judge Gourley have missed the fact that Judge Bauer was not even aware that the pictures had been made? And that the pictures were taken without the slightest disturbance? What possible effect could the taking of the pictures have had, one way or the other, on the administration of justice?

Finally, Judge Gourley throws in the wholly extraneous question of news photography in the courtroom proper. But this has never at any point been an issue in this case. Neither the PNPA nor the two newspapers have ever contended for the right to take pictures in courtrooms. And our own opinion, for what it may be worth, is that this should be a matter for each individual judge to determine for himself in the light of particular circumstances.

All in all, it seems to us that Judge Gourley has not come to grips with the issues which are at the heart of this case. And it would seem to us regrettable if these issues are allowed to rest at this unsatisfactory conclusion.

* * *

WE HAVE been convinced all along that ultimately a proper use of the news camera in the reporting of court proceedings will be worked out by responsible lawyers, judges and editors with due respect for the rights of fair trial, the freedom of the press and the orderly administration of justice. Indeed, we believe that the judges of Westmoreland County, had they been disposed to seek it, could have had the full cooperation of the newspapers in any reasonable arrangement for the coverage of the Wable, or any other trial. There is not the slightest reason to think that newspaper editors as a class are any less conscious than judges of the need to preserve dignity in the courts.

But the Westmoreland County rule, we continue to believe, exceeds both reason and need. And it so infringes on the functioning of a free press that it ought not to be allowed to stand so long as means are available to strike it down.

We have far more to fear from the exercise of arbitrary power by public officials than from the excesses, real or imagined, of the media of public information.

Today and Tomorrow—

Mr. Gluck's Quiz Test

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Mr. Maxwell Gluck, our new and unfortunate Ambassador to Ceylon, is the victim of a certain blindness in high quarters. It is the notion that to have been a success in business is to have the quality and the necessary experience for being a success in public life. Indeed, there is a prejudice against those who make a career in politics and in government affairs. There is little sympathy with those who regard government as a calling, and as an art that has to be learned.

Mr. Lippmann

So the President took it for granted that Mr. Gluck would be a competent ambassador in a sensitive post in a critical region of the world. Why did he take this for granted?

Because, said the President at his press conference, Mr. Gluck was recommended by "a number of people I respect." If the people who recommended him were aware that Mr. Gluck was a big campaign contributor, they had the tact to refrain from mentioning such a sordid consideration to the President.

What then did they tell the President about Mr. Gluck? They told him that they had examined Mr. Gluck's business career, and that it was successful, that they had studied the F.B.I. reports, which were good That was enough to qualify Mr. Gluck. For it could be assumed that he would learn about Ceylon, with which he was not yet "thoroughly familiar," as he had learned how to run his stores and how to breed horses in Kentucky.

Flunked Quiz

Why, then, did Senator Fulbright's little quiz test produce such an uproar? Because it revealed so sharply that Mr. Gluck, however estimable as a person and however successful in business, had never taken any interest, not any interest, in the affairs of South Asia where he is to be a principal representative of the United States.

When he was asked who is the Prime Minister of India — India being the nearest neighbor of Ceylong — Mr. Gluck said he knew who he was but could not "pronounce" the name. This was the crucial question and answer, and the result was a complete giveaway. For while the Prime Minister of India has the given name of Jawaharlial, which is indeed difficult to pronounce, he is known to all of literate mankind as Nehru.

As Nehru, he is as well known as Churchill, Stalin, or Eisenhower. As it is impossible to suppose that Mr. Gluck had never heard the name of Nehru pronounced, the presumption is that he did not know that Nehru is the Prime Minister of India. If anyone thinks that this is not significant, let him imagine how he would feel if Nehru appointed as Indian Ambassador to Mexico or to Cuba one who said he could not "pronounce" the fairly difficult name of Eisenhower.

Such a man would not be regarded as a good prospect to play a useful part in the affairs of the North American continent. For a while he could no doubt be "briefed" — even to knowing President Eisenhower's middle name — what he would really need in order to qualify would be to be born again with an interest in public affairs and with a capacity to realize that the world is round.

President Responsible

Embarrassing as it all is to Mr. Gluck, to the President, to the Foreign Service officers who labor in South Asia, to the Ceylonese, and to Americans concerned for the dignity of their country, there is something to be learned from it. The case throws a sharp light on the problem of the appointment of non-professionals to embassies.

It demonstrates a basic rule, that the burden of proof is on the President when he goes outside the career service. What the President has to prove is that his appointee, though he is not a professional diplomat, though he is not familiar with the country to which he is going, is a man of demonstrated ability in public life. It is not enough that he has made money, that there are no black marks against him in the F.B.I. reports, and that he has been certified by the Republican National Committee. He is to occupy a very public place in the affairs of the world, and he should already have distinction himself in public life.

Many Qualified

This is not to austere a standard. Many of our non-career ambassadors would qualify readily enough under it — for example, in the big posts, Mr. Whitney in London, Mr. Bruce in Bonn, Mrs. Luce and Mr. Zellerbach in Rome, Mr. Bowles, Mr. Cooper, and Mr. Bunker in New Delhi. The common qualification of all of them is that, while they have not had a career in the Foreign Service, some considerable part of their careers has been spent with distinction in public service.

Always, however, an appointment outside the career service should be regarded as the exception which has to be justified by the special quality and the proved distinction of the candidate. Furthermore, it ought to be an unwritten rule that at least one of the major West European embassies — including now and then the highly honorific embassy at the Court of St. James' — should always be filled by a career officer.

For it should never be said that the highest and most desired posts are closed to the members of the Foreign Service.

Merry-Go-Round—

Unions Helped Weaken Civil Rights Measure

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Just a few days before the vote on the jury trial amendment, Sen. Lyndon Johnson knew that he didn't have the votes to win. He stalled for time. The fact that he finally won was considered nothing short of a political miracle.

Mr. Pearson

The tall Texan had first persuaded southern senators to accept the jury trial amendment with Negroes on juries by telling them it would merely result in hung juries. One white man on the jury could always vote against conviction, could always protect white defendants.

With the South behind him, therefore, what Lyndon needed was to cut into the huge bloc of 38 Republican senators which GOP leader Knowland had lined up against the jury trial amendment.

At this point, Lyndon and the Church - O'Mahoney - Kefauver group conceived the idea of extending trial by jury to all criminal contempt cases, including labor. This, in turn, swung three potent labor groups behind trial by jury. Their shift was what really defeated the administration's civil rights bill.

The three labor groups were: the United Mine Workers, the postal workers and the railroad brotherhoods. How Lyndon won them, despite an emphatic, repeated resolution by the AFL-CIO executive council to the contrary, is the real story of how he won his battle.

Lyndon's Fast Footwork

Here is how he did it:

The postal workers have been desperately anxious to pass a pay raise bill. It must be OK'd by Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina and his Post Office Committee. So Johnston agreed to make postal pay increases the first order of business before his committee and keep it there until passed — if the postal workers in turn would woo Republican senators over to the jury trial amendment. Lyndon Johnson and Johnston also agreed to push the postal pay increase over Eisenhower's veto, if, as expected, he vetoes it.

Jerome Keating, legislative representative of the letter carriers, kept his end of the bargain, buttonholed many senators. He is credited with helping to swing several Senators away from Knowland in favor of the jury trial amendment.

United Mine Workers. The Mine Workers journal had gone on record vigorously against the jury trial amendment. Its June issue had described it as "phony as a three-dollar bill."

Despite this, John L. Lewis suddenly reversed his union and sent telegrams to every senator urging the amendment which his own magazine labeled phony.

This switch was accomplished through Welly Hopkins, one-time member of the Texas Senate, a great friend of Lyndon Johnson and now counsel to the UMW. The fact that Lewis was once socked the biggest fine in labor history by U. S. Judge Alan Goldsborough for violating a court injunction, did not handicap Lyndon and Hopkins in swinging John L. around to the rewritten jury trial amendment.

Lewis, in turn, swung at least one Republican vote away from Knowland — that of Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia.

Railway Brotherhoods. This was the most influential labor group of all. The brotherhoods have a Railway Retirement Act which they want passed and which is stalled in the House. However the chief factor which swung them into line was the personal persuasion of Lyndon.

Parting the Red Sea

Lyndon got hold of Cy Anderson, warmhearted representative of the Railway Labor Executive Association, put his nose almost against Cy's and told him that to save a split in the Democratic party he had to swing the brotherhoods behind the jury trial amendment. When Lyndon starts talking he can almost persuade the waters of the Red Sea to part.

Anderson got busy. He even persuaded ex-Congressman Bob Mollohan of West Virginia to come to Washington to use his influence.

It was this big push by labor which really rescued Lyndon Johnson on the jury trial amendment.

There were two ironic facts about labor's position:

1. — It lined up with part of exactly the same Dixie-GOP coalition which put across the Taft-Hartley Act. It was Taft and northern Republicans who worked out the coalition whereby the South voted against labor and northern Republicans voted against civil rights.

2. — Labor also lined up against important laws which it helped to pass — the Minimum Wage Act, the Davis-Bacon Act, and the Walsh-Healy Act — all enforced by court orders. Enforcement of these laws by jury trials is almost unworkable.

The Views of Others—

Editorial Comment on Nomination of Weiss

(Two newspapers, one in Greensburg and the other in Jeannette, so far have commented editorially on the nomination of David H. Weiss, of Monessen, as a Democratic candidate for common pleas judge of Westmoreland County. Following are excerpts from these editorials.)

Greensburg Tribune-Review

The power of the select few "under the courthouse dome" who control Democratic politics in Westmoreland County remains unchallenged . . .

Weiss reportedly had the nod from the party big-wigs and he came through. The clincher was the action by Attorney Paul W. Mahady, of Latrobe, who threw his support to Weiss on the fifth ballot . . .

During the recesses between each vote, many deals and reported deals were in progress. It was revealed that Mahady had the support of Tom Tannas, of Arnold, who told newsmen that his surprising affiliation with the Latrobe attorney resulted from their common interest in the affairs of Lions International. Dave Weiss also was wearing a Lions pin on his coat.

At another point . . . Judge John M. O'Connell . . . stated that he definitely will be a candidate for another term as judge.

It had appeared to observers present . . . that Judge O'Connell's seat on the bench in the future might be a factor in one of the reported deals in the making. This he denied.

However, the fact that four of the six candidates in the field withdrew in favor of Weiss shows the strength that the county Democratic political machine still holds.

Jeannette News-Dispatch

. . . It goes without saying that the new candidate (Weiss) will team up with Judge Edward G. Bauer, seeking reelection, and District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco, to wage an all-out campaign . . .

But just how the newest candidate will fare at the polls or what strength he can command for Democratic party efforts at the November election under the circumstances, remains to be seen. In that connection a question of really more significance must first be answered, in our opinion. That is: What now will be the stand of Attorney (Joseph M.) Loughran and those thousands of both party registration who supported him to a near-win at the primaries in May?

Completion of the election slate for three places on the county court bench is only the beginning of what could turn out to be a much more interesting campaign than unbalanced voter registration figures would indicate.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Schwarz
(Nancy Oella Lindner)

Lindner–Schwarz Nuptials Solemnized in Church Rite

St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church of Milton was the scene of the marriage of Nancy Oella Lindner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Lindner, Milton, and John Nicholas Schwarz, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Schwarz, Jacksonville, Fla., on Saturday, Aug. 3, at 2 p. m.

The Rev. Clarence T. Moyer, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of 250 guests, amidst a setting of white gladiolus and white chrysanthemums in the altar vases.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Kisor, Kisor Road, who returned yesterday from Milton where they have vacationed for the past week.

Mrs. Oliver Wert, Milton, organist, presented the traditional nuptial music. She was accompanist for the soloist, W. Caldwell Mathias. Milton, whose selections were "Through The Years", "This Day of Golden Promise" and "O Perfect Love". As the couple knelt at the altar he sang "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white imported silk illusion point de sprit with a round low neckline and cap sleeves. Chantilly lace cut in points emphasized the midriff and the very full skirt flared into a chapel length train. The skirt cascaded over a hoop and a silk taffeta slip of blush pink. Her headdress was a coronet of chantilly lace to which was fastened a four layer graduated fingertip veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a basket of white miniature roses and ivy.

Bridal Party

Dorothy Strine, Milton, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Betty Schwabenland, Philadelphia; Miss Judith Lehn, Woodbury, college classmates of the bride, Mrs. Harold Williams, Milton and Mrs. Henry Windsor, Washington, D. C. They were attired in identical pink ballerina-length gowns of flowing nylon chiffon over net and taffeta. The shirred bodice of the gown was sleeveless and accented with a wide white shirred band which ended in streamers that extended to the hem of the full gathered skirt. Each wore a pink velvet bandeau with a pink veil, white choker pearls and wrist-length gloves and carried a small basket of white daisy pompons and ivy.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lindner, the former Oella Kisor, of Monessen, chose a gown of light blue chantilly lace over blue satin. The narrow tiers of the lace fashioned the sheath dress with a low, square neckline and cap sleeves. Her hat was of light blue velvet petals and she wore matching blue satin pumps. Elbow length white gloves and a white orchid corsage completed the ensemble.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a champagne chantilly lace over beige cotton-satin sheath dress, white hat and elbow length white gloves. She carried a small fan and had an orchid corsage.

Mrs. T. W. Kisor, Monessen, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore an Alice Blue lace dress with black accessories and her corsage was of pink rosebuds and white pompons.

Fraternity Brothers

Ensign John Marinovich, Mountain Lakes, N. J., a fraternity brother, served as best man for the bridegroom. The ushers were Jack Britton and Robert Graeff, the later a fraternity brother, both of Toledo, Ohio and Lin and Lawrence Davis, Milton, cousins of the bride.

James Clinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clinger, Milton, served as acolyte.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 200 guests was held at Otzinachson Country Club.

The couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Adirondacks. For traveling, the bride wore a blue-gray sheath dress with short jacket, white and black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Schwarz graduated from Milton Area Joint High School with the class of 1953 and Gettysburg College with the Class of 1957. The bridegroom was graduated from the Robert E. Lee High School, Jacksonville, Fla. in 1952 and Gettysburg College in 1956.

Live In Ohio

The couple will reside in Maumee, Ohio, where Mrs. Schwarz has accepted a teaching position with the Maumee School District. Mr. Schwarz is employed in the production planning department office of Owens-Illinois in Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindner entertained about 50 guests at a buffet supper after the reception.

Attending the wedding from Monessen, in addition to the Kisors, were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kundrat and son, Teddy. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Kundrat.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Matta and family have returned home after spending a week in Dearborn, Mich. Returning with them were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wasilewski and son, who are visiting here with relatives and friends.

The Rev. Robert C. Moffat, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Sag Harbor, N. Y., is visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Moffat, of McKee Ave. and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lohmeyer, of Reed Ave.

The members of the Three L Class of the First Baptist Church will meet on Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the church social rooms. Hostesses will be Dorothy Lender and Gwen Showman.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Vernet, Sr., and son, Larry, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Koneffko, are vacationing at Niagara Falls and Canada.

The Rev. and Mrs. Victor Koontz and family, of Evansville, Ind., have been visiting with local and district friends. They are former local residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Damore and daughter, Melanie, accompanied by Rose Marie Macko have just returned from Marquette, Mich., where they spent 10 days.

ON THE BALL

Clairton INVITED Not ACCEPTED

Clairton definitely can come into the newly formed Big Five Conference and make it a Big Six but the Bears have not been officially accepted as members as yet. In fact, in clarifying this point, the principals of the five schools representing the new conference, stated at a meeting Monday night that Clairton had been invited to APPLY for membership in the new loop. Word from Clairton had it that the Bears had been ACCEPTED as members. This point was not brought out in yesterday's story here on the Monday night meeting in order not to confuse the Redstone issue. Regardless of what happens in the Redstone case, the Constitution drawn up by the five principals is a very sound set of rules.

Much has been written here lately about Bill Mitnick's exploits on the diamond for the Ozarks but his two biggest boosters haven't been mentioned. They are Bill's mother and father, who never miss an Ozark game whether Bill toes the mound or not. On top of this the Mitnicks offer their automobile to transport the players. They are without a doubt the Ozarks' most loyal fans . . . Speaking of loyal fans, two Belle Vernon organizations, the firemen from Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon, will find out Sunday how many fans each has when the "River Rats" as the downtown fire-fighters call themselves battle the on-the-hill "Wildcats" at Marion Field in a 1 o'clock afternoon softball tilt. They've even held intra-squad games with Sam Fiorino's North Belle Vernon team topping Jimmy Koslosky's NBV team, 10-6 last Sunday in the latest practice tilt.

Fighting Irish Natural 'Draw'

You have to hand it to the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame — they draw crowds regardless of their season prospects or poor showings in a previous season. It has been announced already that the Notre-Dame-Navy game at South Bend on Nov. 2, the Michigan State game at Lansing on Nov. 9 and the Oklahoma game on Nov. 16 have all been sold out . . . A former Notre Dame gridder Thomas Simon of Uniontown has been named football and basketball coach at Turkeyfoot Valley Joint High School, succeeding another Fayette Countian Benny Dudek of Connellsville, who resigned . . . Members of the Belle Vernon K of C baseball team will be feted at a corn roast at Pricedale's Croatian Park tonight. The Knights are really proud of their baseballers as this is the second outing in two weeks.

Monessen and Perryopolis players alike came away praising the umpiring of Bobby Potts and Deans Angelo in the Ozark-Perry tilt Tuesday night. That was really a change of pace, for the umps had been getting and giving a "hard time" in every game between the local entry and the Fayette Countians this season. In fact, hardly a game was played between the two that a player wasn't banished, but not this time . . . Speaking of the MVL, how about that torrid race for those playoff spots and for first place? It's the best MVL race in recent years, and the fans are really going for it in a big way. Actually it's a shot in the arm for sandlot baseball in this area.

Protection Galore at Local Hostelry

Lou Kichinko, our faithful Ozark correspondent, is certainly well protected at his new home in the Grand Hotel here. No less than three prize-fighters reside there, including owner Bill (Killer) Cain, Eddie Nasal and young Buck Henry . . . Frankie Frisch, former Pirate and Cardinal manager, has come up with an excellent suggestion. Frank says, "A player as great as Stan Musial ought to be in the Hall of Fame right now." "Why wait five years when you know he's going to make it — do it now while he's in his prime." We're sure every Monongahela Valley fan will echo those sentiments . . . Thomas Blanda, standout Youngwood and New Hemfield Area High School gridder has enrolled at West Point.

Baseball Symbol of 20th Century—Giles

By WARREN GILES
President, National League

CINCINNATI (UP) — I am glad to take advaptage of Oscar Fraley's invitation to contribute a few words as Oscar says, "to the great American public about the great American pastime."

Speaking at a baseball banquet in 1888, Mark Twain is quoted as saying, "Baseball is the very symbol, the outward and visible expression of the drive, and push, and rush and struggle of the raging, tearing, booming Nineteenth Century." It is the same symbol in the Twentieth Century.

I have been asked many times what I thought were the most important factors contributing to the great popularity of baseball, its deep rooted hold on "youngsters" and "oldsters" alike. Of course there are many factors, but in my opinion, some are more important.

First baseball is traditionally an American game, having been played under the same fundamental rules for more than half a century (unlike some of the other popular sports). Professionally it has been maintained as a popular priced spectator sport and a very important factor is the public confidence the game enjoys because of its unquestioned integrity.

In addition to offering great entertainment, baseball provides a common thought and common expression where people from all walks of life, all races, colors and creeds can interact with each other on an equal basis. Baseball offers a great emotional outlet, a release of energy, which if not released could be stored up and be released through some avenue not so healthy.

The autograph seekers, fan clubs, fan letter writers, grandstand managers, umpire critics, are all a big part of the game. It is a great social leveler.

That these advantages are recognized and considered a great civic asset is evidenced by the efforts of public spirited citizens and public officials to secure a major league club for communities not now privileged to enjoy one, and public spirited citizens and public officials making frantic efforts to retain those clubs which there is a possibility of losing.

In the past five years five cities without major league baseball have either built or voted bond issues to provide funds to build modern stadia, with the sole objective of inducing or encouraging major league teams to locate in their cities. I feel certain some of them will be rewarded for their progressive thinking and effort. Major league baseball should be offered to all sections of the country.

I predict that within five years major league clubs will be located in at least three cities not now enjoying that advantage. If some of the moves which are now being considered materialize, the realigning of some of our higher classification minor leagues will be necessary. If that re-alignment is carefully and objectively planned and completed with the future interest of the entire baseball structure in mind, a new league could be formed, and could conceivably become the basic structure of a third major league within a few years.

Cro-Ams, Myfords in TCL Wins

Yesterday's twin bills in the local City Softball League went to the Myfords and Cro-Am entries with the PNA and MPSA nines the victims.

In the first game it was a brilliant hurling duel between Tony Turcaso and Binks Adamczyk with Turcaso's three-hitter besting a five-hit effort by Adamczyk, 3-0.

Myfords scored their first run in the third inning when Pat Santoro reached first on an error and scored when Bud Beeler doubled. Two more crossed in the sixth when Dick DiCenzo singled, went to second on a sacrifice bunt and scored when Jack Shepler doubled. Shepler then tallied on a single by Palmer Rue.

Shepler had a double and single for the top Myford batting effort and Shorty Skowronski had two singles for losing PNA.

Clinch First Place

The second game found the Cro-Ams clinching first place despite the Myford win by topping MPSA.

Five bases on balls and four MPSA errors spelled the difference for the leaders.

Frank Stancato, Cro-Ams hurler, coasted along after the Cro-Ams gave him a 5-0 lead in the first two innings. Dick Saflin's three-run homer in the first started the victors on their way. Tay Saflin had a double for the pennant-winners with Ed Lea and Jim Mormon getting two singles, Milford Holmes a double. Dale Simpson clubbed a homer for the losers' big blow.

Tonight's action shows Italian Hall meeting the Ravens in the first game and the Cro-Ams vs. Myfords in the second tilt. The opener starts at 5:30 o'clock followed by the second tilt immediately upon completion of the first game.

A meeting has been set for 8:45 o'clock tonight at the Ravens Club for all league teams.

Wightman Cup Players Await Pairings List

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Pairings for the 29th Wightman Cup tennis matches will be announced today at the Edgeworth Club in nearby Sewickley, where the British will attempt to wrest the coveted trophy from the Americans during week end

Althea Gibson, without doubt the best woman tennis player in the world today, was expected to be named the No. 1 singles player for the American team by Capt. Margaret Osborne DuPont. Miss Gibson won the Wimbledon championship this year in addition to a host of other titles, especially abroad.

The British will probably name Shirley Bloomer their No. 1 choice to face the power slants of the leggy Miss Gibson. Miss Bloomer, unquestionably the British team's top singles player, has never defeated Miss Gibson in previous tourhaments.

The British have not won the Wightman Cup since 1930. And this year's team though young on experience, is determined to make a good showing. They have practiced diligently at Edgeworth since arriving here last Monday.

Services Today For Dempsey's Business Manager

NEW YORK (UP) — Funeral services will be held Friday in Baltimore for Meyer (Max) Waxman, 64, the man who said "no" for Jack Dempsey during the past quarter-century.

Waxman, Dempsey's business manager, died at his suite in New York's Mayflower Hotel Wednesday after a four-year heart ailment.

When Waxman began handling Dempsey's business affairs in 1932 after the ex - heavyweight champion had retired from the ring, he found that Dempsey's assets totaled "around $300,000 "

Open-handed Jack had lost or given away most of the $7,051,224 he earned in the ring, in movies, etc, during his fighting days Dempsey couldn't say "no" to a business proposal, to a borrower's "touch" or to a request for a free personal appearance.

Waxman added with a grin, "just refer everyone to me, and if the answer has to be 'no,' I'll say it for you."

It was a lucky arrangement for Dempsey and Waxman. Today Jack is a millionaire. And Waxman was very wealthy when he died.

Hickory Names New Grid Coach

HICKORY, Aug 8 — Eugene Seiling, an assistant to Dave Ullum last season at Midway, was named head grid coach at Hickory High for the 1957 season during Monday's meeting of the Fort Cherry joint board.

Seiling, who helped Ullum guide Township High and Slippery Rock State Teachers College, replaces Richard Rizzardi.

Seiling, who helped Ullum guid Midway to the . the WPIAL Class B championship last Autumn, will teach physical education.

Named assistant grid mentor at Hickory was James Gary, a former Wake Forest gridder who later played Canadian football. Gary will teach driver education.

Robert Schwille was appointed cross-country coach.

College All-Stars Confident on Eve of Game With N. Y. Giants

By ED SAINSBURY

CHICAGO (UP) — The College All-Star coaches never have sent a team against one tutored by the New York Giants' Jim Lee Howell, but none of them are concerned about a "first time" Friday night.

Howell will direct the Giants against the collegians, directed by a pro veteran, Curly Lambeau, for the third time, in the second appearance of the New Yorkers in the annual clash, scheduled for the 24th time.

The records favored the professionals, since the collegians have won only seven games and tied two of the 23 already played. Howell, too, may have something new to try out against the college boys, most of them soon to be pro rookies.

Curly Is Confident

But Lambeau was confident that Howell couldn't show his squad anything for which they'll be unprepared.

"He's been well-scouted," Lambeau said. "I expect no problem."

His chief assistant, Hunk Anderson, former Chicago Bears coach who handles the All-Star defense, agreed that the Giants should have nothing new.

"He uses standard offenses similar to those the Giants used under Steve Owen," he said, "and I don't think we'll have any difficulty."

Both Lambeau and Anderson coached teams frequently against the Giants when they were directed by Owen.

Anderson revealed that his team is geared for switching pass defenses each time a change is warranted by the Giants' offensive possibilities. Also, he said, "I imagine our line will get their passer once in a while. They'll keep the heat on."

Both Lambeau and Anderson were maintaining the mystery of who will do what for the All-Stars, hoping to confuse the Giants as much as possible by using the college manpower in new positions for which the pros will have little idea of their capabilities.

Plenty Of Passes

The Giants, though, can be sure of one thing. The collegians will be set to throw plenty of passes with possibly four signal callers alternating, John Brodie of Stanford, Len Dawson of Purdue, Jim Harris of Oklahoma, and Paul Hornung of Notre Dame.

It could be, too, that Hornung will get into action at a halfback post and possibly as a receiver, with one of the other quarterbacks doing the throwing.

Several of the All-Star ends rated as standout pass receivers, Joe Walton of Pittsburgh, Tom Maentz and Ron Kramer of Michigan, Brad Bomba of Indiana and Lamar Lundy of Purdue, and virtually all the halfbacks could be receivers on wide plays.

Ozarks Win 'Must' Tonight Following Donora Victory Over Perryopolis Nine, 8-2

Monessen's Ozarks travel to New Eagle tonight for one of the most important games of the season for the locals.

The game took on added significance last night when Donora upset Perryopolis to move into fourth place and shove New Eagle and the Ozarks into a fifth place tie, out of playoff "territory".

In other words, the locals must win tonight to stay in that playoff race. No details were available on the Donora win last night except the score which was 8-2.

Fayette City increased its first place lead over idle Charleroi to a full game with a 13-3 clobbering of West Newton but not without receiving a scare from the cellar-dwellers at Fayette City last night.

Leaders Get 'Scare'

Manager Tom Caudill of West Newton held the leaders to one-hit and his mates ahead 1-1 when the dam broke in the fifth and sixth innings and Fayette City scored five in the fifth and eight in the sixth frame.

Hal Livingston homered for the big blow in the sixth while Frank Celaschi and Mike Panich doubled. Johnson hit a two-batter for the only West Newton extra-base hit.

Tomorrow night the Ozarks have another tough one facing first place Fayette City in the final regularly-scheduled night of action unless there are postponements.

It's really a down-to-the-wire finish with the fourth playoff berth and first place not decided completely until after tomorrow night. Perry has clinched the third place playoff slot. Fayette City and Charleroi have first and-or second sewed up tight.

Donora Entry Nears PONY Series Berth

Donora's PONY Leaguers today awaited the outcome of the North Pittsburgh-New Kensington playoff tilt to learn of their last foe before moving into the PONY League World series on Aug. 26.

Donora moved into the Region Two PONY League finals by defeating Connellsville at Connellsville last night, 8-3, with a five-run rally in the seventh inning to break a tie.

Singles by John Amatangelo, Ed Niziolek and Chuck Giuffrida and a hit batter produced two runs and left two men on base. Paul Toninecz then put the game on ice with a three-run homer.

Donora will face the winner of todays North Pittsburgh-New Kensington game for the regional crown in a best of three series with the winner to become one of eight teams participating in the PONY World Series at Washington, beginning Aug. 26.

Semi-finals Play Set for Tonight In Prep League

MUNHALL, Pa. (UP)—Butler Pa. meets Massillon, Ohio and Charleston, W. Va. will play South Hills, Pa. tonight in semifinal contests of the Prep League Series here.

In Wednesday's action, South Hills defeated Massillon, 8-6, and Rome, Ga. came back to beat Waltham, Mass., 9-5 after losing earlier in the day to Charleston, 5-2.

The defeat put Waltham out of the double elimination tournament.

South Hills won its game on a five-run fifth inning when with two outs Massillon catcher Gene Soreson dropped a third strike and a single, error, double and a homer by Bart Neimeyer followed.

Paul Elphinstone hit a round tripper in the second with one on for South Hills.

Massillon jumped to a six-run lead in the second inning on a single hit, a hit batsman and four South Hills errors.

In the Rome - Charleston game, Kenny Daniels was the big gun in the West Virginia team's attack. Daniels, a left hander, banged out a double and scored three of his team's five runs.

Rome's Wilbur Bevel smashed a double to lead the Georgia team's eight hit attack. Rome had five errors.

In the second Rome game, winning pitcher Warren Handerson pitched no-hit, no-run ball except for the first inning when Waltham scored five runs on two hits, a hit batsman and two errors.

Chuck Stancel homered for Rome in the fourth with one on and pitcher Henderson aided his own cause by slamming a round-tripper in the fifth.

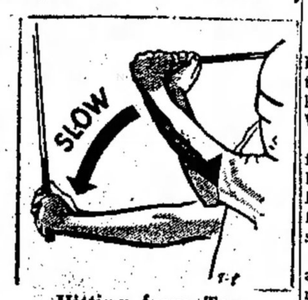
DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



Hitting from Top

Some faults in the early or middle stages of the swing can be overcome, or at least minimized, IF the player has sufficient strength and muscular co-ordination. A player who takes the club away from the ball wrong, for instance, may be able to correct for that before the impact area is reached.

One fault, however, is always fatal to a good golf swing. That is the action known as "hitting from the top" or trying to apply maximum power at the start of the downswing.

Whatever the term applied to it, the mistake is bad. It is also the most prevalent one in golf unfortunately.

The action from the top must be slow, smooth, and steady. At this point in the swing, remember you're still building up power. This is no time to lose all the power you have already built up. Wait until you reach the hitting area before you pour it on!

Spider Webb Has Redeemed Self, Defeats Joseph

CHICAGO (UP) — Middleweight Spider Webb said today he was "a redeemed man" because he beat Charley Joseph, one of the two fighters who have defeated him in his 25 pro bouts.

"I had to win this one," he said. "Maybe I didn't look too good, but I thought I fought better than I did when he beat me in our last fight. I was trying to shorten my punches, stay away from those long right hands, and so I had more power."

Webb, scoring his 23rd victory Wednesday night, apparently earned himself a rematch with the NBA's 10th - ranked middleweight, Bobby Boyd. Webb was ranked sixth by the NBA and Joseph eighth going into the scrap.

Webb met Boyd more than three years ago, early in his pro career and before he went into military service, scoring one of his 12 knockout victories.

Webb was trying for a knockout on Joseph Wednesday night to prove he shouldn't have lost to the New Orleans fighter in their previous bout in Joseph's home town.

Webb believed he had Joseph in trouble in two rounds, the third and seventh, when he kept him cornered for nearly three full minutes of pummeling.

Gene Conley Finally Gets Around To Helping Braves' Pennant Drive

By MILTON RICHMAN

It took a long time, but string bean Gene Conley finally has gotten around to helping the Milwaukee Braves toward some of that World Series lettuce.

Conley has suddenly blossomed forth with seven victories in his last eight decisions to give the Braves what they've been looking for all along—a fourth dependable starter.

Conley's fine seven - hit effort against Cincinnati Wednesday night gave the Braves a 12-2 victory that stretched their National League lead to 1½ games. The triumph was Milwaukee's 10th in the last 12 games and Conley who won only two games up until the All-Star break, has won 4 of those 10.

Wes Covington drove in four of the Braves' runs with a pair of homers while Red Schoendienst knocked in three more with a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning.

The Chicago Cubs, on their longest winning streak of the season, made it five in a row when they defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-1, and the Giants beat the Dodgers, 8-5, at Jersey City, N.J., in the only other scheduled National League contests.

White Sox Cut Lead

The Chicago White Sox, who still entertain some hopes of catching the Yankees in the American League race, cut the distance between them to six games with a 7-0 decision over Kansas City. Washington nipped the Yanks, 3-2; Detroit defeated Cleveland, 4-1, and the Red Sox toppled the Orioles, 5-2, in 11 innings.

Home runs by Walt Moryn, Bob Speake and Dale Long paced the Cubs to their triumph over the Cards. Rookie Dick Drott picked up his 10th victory although he needed a neat bit of relief pitching by Dick Littlefield in the eighth. Drott departed after St. Louis filled the bases with one out in the eighth. Littlefield came on and induced pinch - hitter Walker Cooper to bounce into a double play. Herm Wehmeier was the loser.

Don Newcombe of the Dodgers had a 5-3 lead going into the ninth inning when he ran into a three-run homer by pinch - hitter Hank Sauer. Clem Labine took over and the Giants added two more runs when Ray Jablonski ingled with the bases full. Marv Grissom pitched one - hit ball for three innings in relief of Johnny Antonelli to gain the victory.

Hurls Fifth Shutout

Jim Wilson of the White Sox hurled his fifth shutout and 12th victory in holding the Athletics to two hits. The White Sox routed Mickey McDermott with a six-run burst in the third inning, Earl Torgeson and Jim Rivera each delivering two-run singles.

Tom Sturdivant of the Yankees had a two-hit shutout and a 1-0 lead against Washington in the ninth inning but Eddie Yost tagged him for a two-run homer. Sturdivant gave up two more singles before Bob Grim took over.

A sacrifice and Art Schult's sacrifice fly then brought in what proved to be the deciding run. Mickey Mantle blasted his 30th homer off Tru Clevenger in the bottom of the ninth and Hank Bauer homered in the first inning. Bud Byerly, second of three Senator pitchers, was the winner.

Hoeft Checks Indians

Southpaw Billy Hoeft checked the Indians on six hits as the Tigers clinched the victory with a three-run outburst off rookie John Gray in the first inning. A walk, doubles by Jim Small and Ray Boone and Al Kaline's single gave Detroit its three runs in the first inning.

Ted Williams' hustle on the base paths figured in Boston's 11-inning win over the Orioles.

Williams, who had driven in Boston's first two runs with a double in the first inning, singled with one out in the 11th and slid into second when center - fielder Jim Busby fumbled the ball. Mickey Vernon followed with a slow roller down the first-base line and when Baltimore pitcher Connie Johnson fell fielding Bob Boyd's throw, Williams hot-footed it home all the way from second.

Singles by Jackie Jensen, Billy Consolo and Sammy White added two more runs. Frank Sullivan pitched a six-hitter for his 10th victory.

Hilltops-Blackhawks For Prep Loop Title

It'll be the Hilltops battling the Blackhawks for the local Prep League title series beginning tomorrow.

That issue was decided yesterday when the second-place Toppers edged the third-place Rockets, 9-8. The Rockets had advanced with a win over the White Sox Tuesday.

The Hilltops took a 6-1 first inning lead which seemed very safe until the Rockets started pecking away at it and came within a run in the last frame before hurler Ken Bronson put out the fire and saved the win.

Bronson fanned 12 but walked 10. Walter Jackson was the losing hurler.

There is no action today due to Knot-Hole Day at Forbes Field.

Braves Defeat Sox In LL Minors, 9-5

The Braves moved closer to a shot-down battle with the Pirates for first place in the local Little League Minors with a 9-5 victory over the White Sox yesterday.

Ronald Junk and Danny Cosner of the Braves and Terry O'Toole and Annonio of the White Sox matched five-hitters but the 10 walks given up by O'Toole hurt considerably. Cosner posted the win while O'Toole suffered the loss.

Junk doubled in a futile effort to aide his own cause with R. Wilen and Andy Temoshenka tripling for the Sox. Dennis Yankosky with a double, garnered the only Braves extra-base blow.

Action continues tomorrow after a Knot Hole layoff today. Tomorrow's card shows the Pirates battling the Yankees.

Pirates Hope to Sweep Series With Phils in Today's Game

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The last-place Pittsburgh Pirates take on Philadelphia in an afternoon game today after a layoff Wednesday.

The Bucs' Vernon Law (10-7) will face veteran Curt Simmons also 10-7, enjoying his best season in recent years.

Danny Murtaugh, the Bucs new manager, will be fighting to edge out the Phils for a two - game sweep of the short series which began Tuesday night.

Murtaugh said he would not shift the lineup for the time being except to probably change the batting order against southpaw pitchers.

Outfielder Bill Virdon is still on the sidelines with a pulled muscle.

Pittsburgh next takes on third-place Brooklyn for a four - game series at Forbes Field, with single games on Friday and Saturday and a double-header Sunday.

Anthracite was the first mineral fuel to be used in American blast furnaces.

Yellow Replacing Red As Safe Hunting Color

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—If you are heading for the hills, men, to do a spot of deer hunting, the odds are 4-1 better that you'll return alive if you wear yellow hunting clothes instead of the traditional red.

Tests have been going on for nearly a year now to prove that yellow is easier seen in the woods than red and the results have been so conclusive that manufacturers this fall put on sale yellow hunting togs.

The tests have been made at Ft. Lewis, Wash., Ft. Ord, Calif., and in the Skokomish Valley of the Olympic peninsula in Washington.

The tests were promoted by the California Optometric Association; National Rifle Association and California Department of Fish and Game with the cooperation of the U.S. Army.

The tests showed:

At Ft. Lewis, conducted in an area typical of a rain forest. Trees were bright green, grass brown. The various colors qualified in this order: yellow, yellow fluorescent, multicolored plaid, orange, orange fluorescent, blue, red, green. Tests were taken at 50, 100, 150 and 200 yards. Yellow could be considered between four and five times more easily found than red.

Olympic peninsula test (where a hunter had been killed a few days before wearing red jacket and red cap). Ground was covered with five inches of snow, evergreens camouflaged by snow, contrasting darkness from stumps, logs and deciduous brush. Sunshine brilliant. Color qualified in this order: Yellow, yellow fluorescent, orange, orange fluorescent, red fluorescent, green, red, blue plaid.

At great distances according to a Navy test, yellow tended to become white and woud not be suitable as a "survival color" in snow country.

But most hunting accidents occur at 50 yards or less, so for the hunter, yellow is considered far and away the safest.

With about 300 men killed and 3000 injured in hunting accidents each year, the purchase of yellow hunting clothes appears as an important link in the art of survival.

The general belief is that animals do not care what color you wear—they all are color blind, anyway. Only thing they can see is brightness and movement.

While millions of people in Asia and Africa eat sorghum in the form of bread, porridge or confectionery or make a beverage from it, it is grown in the United States almost exclusively for animal feed.

Legion Told Marshall Will Receive State's Top Award

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader announced today that former Secretary of State Gen. George C. Marshall will be awarded the Pennsylvania Meritorious Medal in September.

Leader said the medal, Pennsylvania's highest award, will be presented to the retired Army Commander at his home in Leesburg, Va., in recognition of his services to the nation as a general and a statesman.

The governor made the announcement in a speech to the 1,600 Pennsylvania American Legion delegates here for their annual convention.

The speech highlighted the convention's opening session this morning, as the legionnaires temporarily suspended their customary high junks to conduct Legion affairs.

In his address, the governor urged the veterans to support state and federal legislation for better housing, schools and health facilities. He also called for support of a "strong national defense," reiterating the position he took on the subject at the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, that "peace is the greatest bargain in history, no matter what its price tag."

The delegates were also scheduled today to hear a report from the chairman of the Legion Legislative Committee, State Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong).

Pechan, in a speech prepared for delivery before the convention this afternoon, called upon Legion members to muster support for the Korean Veterans Bonus Bill, which will be placed before Pennsylvania voters in a statewide referendum in November.

Gen. George C. Marshall

Pointing out that if the payments to the state's 330,000 Korean veterans are to be made the Legislature must raise $150,000,000, he said the legionnaires "should help by seriously considering this question of taxation" to pay for the bonus.

Reporting on the progress of legion-supported legislation in the 1957 General Assembly Pechan cited the passage of the 18-year-old voting amendment to the state Constitution, the authorization of special Korean grave markers, and the hike in allowances for veterans' funerals from $600 to $800.

The senator hit at Gov. Leader's vetoing of a bill he introduced which would have prohibited the payment of state unemployment compensation to persons who refused to testify in courts or before "any lawfully constituted body" concerning their affiliation with subversive groups.

Unconstitutional

In rejecting the bill, after it was approved by the Legislature, the governor indicated that the proposed legislation would be unconstitutional.

Pechan, however, said the bill had been written "in accordance with advice given by prominent Pennsylvania lawyers and judges."

"It is high time we quit coddling this element and I dare say that every red-blooded American resident of Pennsylvania agrees and perhaps looks to the militant forces of the American Legion to lead the way," he said.

Red Leader Calls for Communistic Germany

BERLIN (UP) — East German Premier Otto Grotewohl today told a parliament meeting attended by Soviet Communist Leader Nikita Khrushchev that Germany will remain divided until Communism spreads to all of Germany.

Khrushchev, whose state visit so far has been a flop, drove to the parliament (Volkskammer) through streets where reluctant East Germans again were marshalled with flags and banners. Again the reception was chilly.

But in the rubber stamp parliament it was a different matter. Grotewohl delivered a slashing attack on West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Western allies while Khruschev looked on with First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan.

"The German democratic republic exists and will continue to exist until unity comes and socialism is secured throughout Germany," Grotewohl declared. Khrushchev looked on approvingly.

Grotewohl called for withdrawal of foreign troops from Western Germany and the removal of foreign bases as a prelude to German unification. And he attacked Western demands that German unity should be based on free, nation-wide elections.

Strongly Worded

Grotewohl's strongly worded statement confirmed reports before Khrushchev's arrival that the Soviet delegation would throw its full support to the Spandau regime and perhaps perpetuate the division of Germany.

The East Germans have indicated through their frosty reception they wanted unity now and not on terms laid down by Khrushchev and his East German followers.

Khrushchev used all his wiles Wednesday when he arrived from Moscow for a seven-day goodwill tour, but he failed to warm the hearts of anti-Communist East Germans whose uprising against Communism was crushed by Soviet tanks.

Movie Industry Saddened by Hardy's Death

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The movie industry sadly realized today that the death of retired movie comedian Oliver Hardy has brought to a close one of the greatest eras in comedy.

The "fall guy" half of the Lauren and Hardy slapstick team died Wednesday following a prolonged illness due to a paralytic stroke. The portly Hardy at 65 had wasted away to 145 pounds from the 350 he weighed over two decades of acting.

"An era is ended in comedy, and a worldwide audience of deeply loyal fans has lost a friend," one associate said.

Hardy won popularity even while living in retirement at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Monnie L. Jones. In recent years old Laurel and Hardy film brought laughter to a nationwide television audience.

Among those taking the news of Hardy's death the hardest was his long-time partner Stan Laurel, now 67 and himself recovering from a stroke.

"What is there to say," Laurel said sadly. "It shocked me, of course. Babe was like a brother. That's the end of the history of Laurel and Hardy."

Radio Touches Off Dynamite Blast

BOSTON (UP)—A quantity of dynamite fuses and caps stored in an underground bunker exploded early today hurling tons of rock and dirt into the air.

Police said many homes in the area suffered extensive damage but no one was injured. Residents up to a quarter of a mile away reported shattered windows.

The explosion was apparently touched off by electrical impulse from the two-way radios in nearby fire trucks, police said.

The dynamite accessories were being used on a construction project in the area and were stored in the bunker at night.

Settle Strike at Westinghouse

WILMERDING, Pa. (UP) — Office and technical employes at the Westinghouse Air Brake Co. plant here were expected to return to work today after accepting a wage increase and other benefits.

The employes, members of the Office and Technical Union (independent) met Wednesday afternoon at Wilmerding High School and voted by about an 80 per cent majority to accept a new contract. The 900 members had been on strike for three weeks.

A union spokesman said the new agreement calls for a special adjustment of $47.50 to all union members, a change from semi-monthly to bi-weekly paydays and a wage increase of $9 in each bi-weekly pay.

Other provisions include an adjustment of lower job classifications and the right of union representation when workers are called in for performance, appraisals and reviews.

The union spokesman said the entire work force should be back on the job by Monday.

Defense Attorneys For Confidential In Legal Move

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Defense attorneys for Confidential Magazine today prepared to launch a legal maneuver in an attempt to get two West Coast representatives of the magazine, charged with conspiracy to commit criminal libel, off the hook.

The defense announced Wednesday shortly before the trial of Fred and Marjorie Meade, West Coast agents for Confidential, was recessed until Friday that it had made a "great discovery."

Attorney Harold Rhoden, one of a battery of defense lawyers, contended that if a conspiracy had been committed the charges should have been brought in New York where the magazine is published. He cited a recent case in which a conviction was reversed by the state Supreme Court because a defendant was tried here for a crime that took place in Mexico.

Meanwhile, some 100 subpenaed movie stars took "the day off" as the trial judge was forced to recess the trial for a day because he was scheduled to rule on other court matters. The top movieland figures haven't been dragged into court yet but during every session are on two-hour call to testify as "defense witnesses."

Most of Wednesdays session was devoted to the introduction of rather dull evidence by the prosecution.

Cop Sues City Of New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (UP) — George W. Hill, former New Castle police officer, has filed suit against the city for $13,551 on grounds that he became permanently and totally disabled due to overexertion while performing his duties.

Hill said in the suit, filed in Lawrence County Court Wednesday, that he was disabled on or about March 1, 1954, while performing his duties as a policeman. Hill also asked for reinstatement of his past police salary and entitlement to future medical and hospital expenses.

Navy Radio Keeps Opening Garage Doors

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP — One modern convenience practically has driven some 200 homeowners and the Navy "off the beam" because it's too much "on the beam."

Strange things have been happening around the North Island Naval Air Station. Residents boasting radio-controlled garage doors are sometimes kept busy day and night trying to keep the doors shut.

At the same time, the ground control approach system at the naval air station has been topsy turvy. Instead of getting steady radio signals, approaching pilots occasionally hear nothing but static.

The Federal Communications Commission finally located the trouble. It discovered that the 200 doors, which are supposed to react only to a radio transmitter in the owner's car as he approaches the garage, are tuned in on the Navy radio beams. The FCC Wednesday ordered the automatic door-opening systems modified to get off the Navy's beams.

Honor Students At Penn State

Among the 120 students in the College of Liberal Arts at Pennsylvania State University who were named to the dean's list for the Spring semester were two Belle Vernon students.

Dr. Ben Euwema, dean of the college, announced the list this week, and it included Lee VanBremen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanBremen, of 814 Fayette Rd., and Gemma Gloria Ninchak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ninchak, of 600 Bluff St. Both were honor students at Bellmar High School.

VanBremen has completed his freshman year in arts and letters and Miss Ninchak has completed her junior year. An average of 3.50 is required to make the dean's list. VanBremen's was 3.65 and Miss Ninchak earned a 4.00 or perfect record.

Carol Davenport, who was elected first alternate delegate to represent Ladies Auxiliary to Belle Vernon Fire Co. No. 2 at the Western Pennsylvania convention, will attend in place of Mrs. Dorothy Wendel, president. Mrs. Wendel, who was elected a delegate, cannot attend.

The convention will conclude on Thursday.

Ohio Youths May Have Asiatic Flu

COLUMBUS (UP) — The state Health Department yesterday made laboratory tests to determine if some twenty young Ohioans who attended a religious meeting a few weeks ago at Grinnell College, Iowa, have Asiatic flu.

The tests are being made on persons in Hamilton, Vinton, Wayne, Pike, Butler, Logan, Columbiana, Van Wert, Jackson and Brown counties.

Health Director Ralph Dwork said about 80 Ohioans attended the Iowa conference, which broke up when many of its participants became ill.

The names of Ohioans who made the journey were obtained from the U.S. Public Health Service and forwarded by the state Health Department to local health officials throughout Ohio.

Dwork said specimens were taken from about 20 persons who had symptoms similar to Asiatic flu.

Major Leagues Face Some Problems on West Coast

By HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Swaying palm trees and good weather! Fans yearning for major league teams! Big stadiums and plenty of parking space! And millions in California money floating around!

Sounds like a baseball magnate's paradise, doesn't it?

Well, it may be at that. But before Horace Stoneham's Giants swithch to San Francisco and Walter O'Malley's Dodgers head for Los Angeles, we might take off those rose colored glasses for the nonce.

The 5,000,000 fans in the Los Angeles area and the 3,000,000 in the San Francisco Bay region will undoubtedly turn out in multitudes at the outset, but there are a few ointment files.

There are beautiful six and eight-lane freeways right to the ball park frontdoors. But, for example, let's take a look at the Los Angeles situation.

As is well known, that is a sprawling town The population is big but it is spread over a lot of territory and some of the people will have to travel 50 miles to see a ball game.

Arena To Seat 50,000

The new stadium will be built in the Chavez ravine at the intersection of freeways from Pasadena, Hollywood, the Harbor and Santa Ana. Plans now call for an arena seating 50,000 with space for 20,000 cars. There are big Negro (250,000) and Mexican (300,000) populations and they are avid fans with players like Don Newcombe and Roy Campanella assured draws.

There are about 2,000,000 TV sets in the area and when pay-TV lines are set up, that may prove a big factor in the financial success of the move.

Weather-wise Los Angeles probably will offer the best in the majors. Down through the years the Angels of the Pacific coast League average only two or three rain-outs per season.

San Francisco is something else again. The stadium will probably be built near the bay at a spot called South Basin which is pretty well protected from the wind and fog But let's face it—the worst weather in San Francisco is in June, July and August.

Fans In Wraps

It is cold and foggy during those months and to attend a ball game, most people wear top coats and some carry handwarmers. Fans also consume enormous quantities of beer, coffee, hot dogs and peanuts—to keep warm. The per capita seat cushion sale is one for every two customers, compared with a national average of one for five, and again it is to help keep warm.

One thing puzzles San Francisco local baseball people. This has been an "American League town" for years with the Giants drawing around 7,500 in exhibition games against 20,000 for the Yankees, White Sox and Indians.

Another factor is the selectivity of Califorina sports fans. Hundreds of thousands play golf the year round. There is swimming, sailing, fishing, hunting. And there is football. And last, but not least, horse racing.

Stoneham has said horse racing cut into attendance in New York He ain't seen nothin' yet.

Horse Racing Also

There is horse racing in California 52 weeks a year on a major scale. Hollywood Park, only a 20-minute ride from what would be the Dodgers' new home, this year averaged 31,000 attendance per day in June and July. From there the horses go 90 miles south to Del Mar where attendance runs about 10,000 per day.

Within 15 miles of Stoneham's San Francisco park will be three major racing plants—Golden Gate fields, Bay Meadows and Tanforan. They don't run in the summer months but are active in spring and fall.

Football—both college and professional—will offer lots of competition on Saturdays and Sundays

It may boil down to this.

With pennant contenders, Los Angeles may draw 3,000,000 fans in one year, San Francisco 2,000,000. With second division clubs, San Francisco (off past records) probably will be a better drawing city than Los Angeles. Fans here, living close together, are more closely knit in their loyalty.

But you can be sure that Messrs Stoneham and O'Malley have their work cut out for them.

Johnstown Water Rates Going Up

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Johnstown Water Co will raise its rates an estimated $308,000 annually for most of its 2,000 consumers in the Johnstown area, beginning Aug. 20.

The new rates, originally filed to become effective last February, were authorized by the Public Utility Commission today pending the outcome of continued hearings on the application for the rate hike. It is opposed by the city of Johnstown

While finding that the boost will not yield excessive returns, the commission ordered the company to use a PUC-devised system of charges.

At the same time the PUC approved an $8,600 yearly increase for the affiliated Conemaugh and Franklin Water Co, serving 1,373 consumers, also effective Aug. 20.

Both firms use separate rates for their gravity and pumping areas. The PUC said the proposed rate schedules submitted by the company would place "an excessive share of the rate load" on gravity system users. Both utilities said the higher rates are needed because of higher operating costs.

Should Foreign Languages Be Taught in Grade Schools?

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Should Johnny learn how to say "Bon jour" and "Buenos dias" in the fourth grade?

Debate on the question is gathering steam today as more and more Johnnies in the public schools are learning to jabber in foreign tongues when barely out of toddler clothes.

Proponents of foreign language instruction from kindergarten on up argue that today's shrinking world demands that Americans climb up from their low standing on the world linguistic ladder.

They claim early childhood is the easiest and best time to begin; that children themselves are enthusiastically receptive and that it broadens horizons for countless pursuits in later schooling and adult life.

Critics feel grade school languages are of doubtful value and a needless luxury in already pinched school budgets, an imposition on the child and a sacrifice of other more important curricula.

Both sides agree on one point: The movement to foreign languages in the elementary schools has had a phenomenal growth in the past five years.

A survey of the modern language association published by the U.S. office of Education showed that "at least" 271,617 grade school youngsters, kindergarten through grade six, were getting foreign language instruction in 1955.

That's small compared to the 20 million enrolled in the public grade schools. But the figure is more than one-third of the foreign language enrollment in high schools and fast approaching the number taking foreign languages in college.

The 1955 grade school instruction was going on in 1,977 schools in 357 towns in 45 states and represented a whopping 300 per cent increase in three years.

Both sides also agree on another point. That is that the most critical problem in the grade school language picture is the shortage of competent teachers — teachers fluent in languages with special talent for teaching the new hearing-speaking approach.

The demand for competent teachers has sparked a flourishing of teacher workshops, guides, manuals, tapes, records and audio-visual aids designed to help fill the gap. The District of Columbia is one area that has tried closed-circuit TV teaching of foreign languages.

In Albuquerque, N.M., the school system felt it could meet the pressure for grade school Spanish in the bilingual state only to the extent of having three roving teachers among 12 of its 67 schools. Parents won approval last year to hire more teachers to instruct optional classes in pre-school hours — paid from a parent-financed kitty.

MADE THEIR OWN ROCKET — Two 17-year-olds, Clifford Ramsey (left) and Bradley Glover, unload their homemade rocket at Holloman Air Development Center, N. M., for experimental firing by the U. S. Air Force. They spent three years and more than $1,000 building it.

Higher Farm Wages Problem

FARGO, N. D.— (UP) — Farmers in all parts of the country are paying higher rates for hired workers than they paid a year ago, according to a college farm expert.

Walter Wilson, associate agricultural economist at the North Dakota Agricultural College, said the climb in wages since last year reflects a trend that has been continuous since the 1930's except for the years from 1948 to 1950.

Citing the western north-central states as an example, Wilson said farm wages have been boosted 3.1 per cent from 1956 to 1957.

The significance of the trend is that farm wage rates have advanced more than the index of all farm costs, Wilson said. It means that farmers having difficulty getting farm labor at a price they can pay might further mechanize their operations.

Mexicans Due

MEXICO CITY (UP)—More than 125,000 Mexican migrant workers will head for American farms this week, government officials estimated today.

'80 Club' Meeting Well Attended

FLORA, Ill. — (UP) — Seventy-nine men attended the annual meeting of the "80 Club" here. Members must be at least 80 and live in Clay County.

The total years represented by the 79 men was 6,684, plus 11 months and nine days.

Oldest man present was William Frye, Louisville, who was 97 years, five months and 29 days old. The "baby" was Edgar Kitley, who was six days shy of his 80th birthday.

Principal speaker was Dr. Andy Hall, 92, Mt. Vernon, named the General Practitioner of the Year in 1950 by the American Medical Association.

"I'm going home and organize myself a club just like this one," Dr. Hall said.

Husband Wins In Custody Case

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The mother of two Tarentum, Pa. children failed to appear in court yesterday to defend herself and a judge awarded permament custody of the children to her husband.

Robert R. Kuhn, 32, 615 E. 8th Ave., Tarentum, had accused his divorced wife Gladys Ruth Baughman, 34, of being an 'unfit mother." The woman's uncle was one of a half dozen witnesses who testified concerning the charge.

Kuhn said his wife apparently went to Florida instead of appearing in court. Judge James G. Legnard then signed a formal order giving him permanent custody of Shirley Elizabeth, 7, and Robert Allen, 5, who have been boarding at a home in Freeport.

Sugar beets and sugar cane provide an identical product (in processed form) though they grow under entirely different climatic and soil conditions, and one is a root crop.

Young Couples Have Problem Of Heavy Debt

LOS ANGELES — (UP) —More emphasis should be placed upon teaching young people the practical aspects of personal and home finance, according to Erwin M. Keithley of the UCLA department of business education and office management.

The three R's of repossession, refinancing and residential loans should be taught along with the regular academic courses, he said. Banking, budgeting, financial planning, home ownership, insurance, taxation, social security, pension plans, wills and estates, and borrowing and banking should be included.

In an economy of credit, young people should be able to discern whether or not the company advertising credit without carrying charges is including the interest cost in the original price of merchandise. They should know enough arithmetic to figure out whether the six per cent interest rate advertised on a time-payment commodity is really 18 per cent or higher, the business teacher said.

"The small-print jungle of everyday installment buying can be full of hidden-clause quicksand traps which sink the unwary up to their necks in debt," he added.

Vodka Prices Up

WARSAW, Poland (UP)—Poland will boost its vodka prices 40 per cent this week end in an attempt to reduce drunkenness, it was disclosed today. Vodka presently costs about $9 a pint at the official local rate of exchange and about $1.50 at the tourist rate.

"In Recognition of Outstanding Devotion to Duty"

Mrs. Musetta R. Wagner

Mrs. Margaret G. Scott

Mrs. Freda H. Hicks

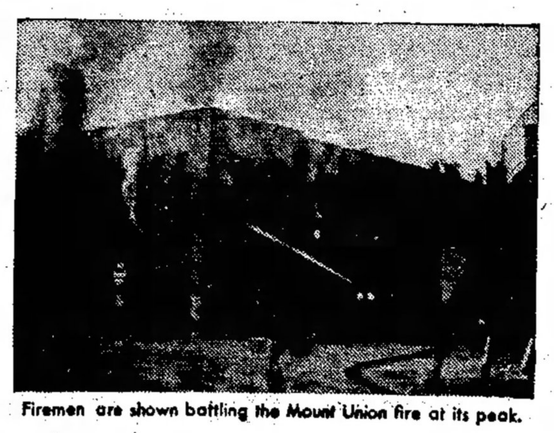
To the long list of telephone men and women nationwide whose courage and resourcefulness in time of peril have won them the coveted Theodore N. Vail Medal, the names of three Bell of Pennsylvania operators have just been added.

They are Mrs. Musetta R. Wagner, Mrs. Margaret G. Scott, and Mrs. Freda H. Hicks, of the Mt. Union, Pa., office.

At about 5:30 one Sunday morning last March the call to extra duty came to them. A furniture store adjoining the telephone office was an inferno of flames. The decisive action they took in summoning fire-fighting forces and alerting borough officials and neighboring residents was the determining factor in avoiding loss of life and preventing a half-million-dollar fire from spreading. They left the smoke-filled telephone exchange only when firemen insisted they could do no more.

The Vail Medal is the telephone industry's highest honor. It was established in 1920, to honor Theodore N. Vail, late president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and to perpetuate his belief in the public service ideal. It is awarded for initiative, resourcefulness, courage, fortitude and accomplishment in averting or easing the effects of catastrophe, saving human life, maintaining or restoring telephone service, or preventing or minimizing damage to property.

Musetta Wagner, Margaret Scott, and Freda Hicks have earned their medals well.



Firemen are shown battling the Mount Union fire at its peak.

Kitchen Range Method Used for Broiling

"Not everyone is lucky enough to have an outdoor fireplace or grill to broil meat over the coals. How about giving some hints about how to broil well in the kitchen range?" This question came recently from a reader.

A good range is essential and certainly during the cold months when outdoor meals are out of season. There can be very good results if directions that come with the range are followed. Formerly, all of these suggested leaving the door open during cooking. With the new efficient type of broiler with which a modern gas stove is equipped, this is not necessary. Most of the electric ranges suggest the open door.

The meat should be placed on a rack and as close as possible to the heating unit. After the meat is browned on both sides, the rack may be placed in the lower position and perhaps the broiler set at a lower temperature. Much depends upon whether one likes steak rare, medium or well done. If there are many choices in the family, small club steaks or filets may be a better choice than one large steak.

One of the advantages of broiling in the range is that the juices and some of the fat will be caught in the broiler pan. Some of this may be poured over the meat after it is cooked, and some used in sauteing the sliced onions or mushrooms so often served with steak.

MUSHROOMS IN STEAK JUICE

1 pound mushrooms
4 tablespoons steak drippings
Salt
Pepper

Wash and stem mushrooms. Melt steak drippings and add whole or sliced mushrooms. Cook over low heat about 5 minutes, until tender, stirring occasionally. Season with salt and pepper, and serve on toast or with steak. Yield: 6 servings. Note: If desired, 1 tablespoon minced onion may be cooked with the mushrooms.

SAUTEED POTATO SLICES

7 medium potatoes
3 tablespoons steak drippings
1 medium onion, sliced
Salt
Pepper

Wash and pare potatoes. Cut in paper-thin slices. Melt steak drippings in heavy skillet. Add potatoes, onion, and seasonings and saute over low heat until potatoes are light brown on both sides, turning occasionally. Cover and continue cooking over low heat 10 to 15 minutes longer, lifting occasionally to prevent burning. Use more drippings as needed. Yield: 6 servings.

CORN PUDDING

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1¼ cups milk
2 cups grated corn
2 eggs, well beaten

Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan. Stir in flour, salt and sugar. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils. Stir in corn and fold in well-beaten eggs. Pour into greased 1-quart casserole and set in pan of hot water. Bake 15 minutes in moderate oven (375 Degrees F.), lower temperature to 350 Degrees F., and continue baking for about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

FRESH PEACHES, fully ripe or only partly so, go into the makings of many luscious summer desserts: this cobbler for one, or pies, or as a topping over gingerbread waffles.

Ice Box Cheesecake Is Easy to Make

Cheesecake apparently was originally a Pennsylvania Dutch dessert, but it is now found throughout the country. Certain restaurants have made their reputation with this delicacy.

The restaurant product is usually a type of baked cake or pie which is difficult to duplicate in a home kitchen successfully. On the other hand, one prepared with the aid of a refrigerator is even more delicate and not too hard to make. Cottage cheese furnishes the base with gelatine as a thickening and egg yolks, egg whites and whipped cream for richness.

Either corn flakes or graham cracker pastry will be used for the shell, or lining, for a spring form mold. This utensil makes it easy to remove the cake. A crust of this type may also be used with a rich desert that has a base of cream cheese. This, however, is often served in wedges with berries or sliced fruit.

Both of these desserts are appropriate for summer, as they can be prepared ahead of time and with little or no use of the range.

REFRIGERATOR CHEESECAKE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk
2 cups cottage cheese
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 recipe corn flake pastry

Soften gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes. Combine slightly beaten egg yolks, salt, sugar, and milk in top of double boiler, and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from hot water, add gelatine, mix well, and place pan in cold water to cool. Add cheese, which has been put through a sieve, lemon rind and juice, and vanilla extract. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Press 2-3 of corn flake pastry in bottom of 9-inch spring form mold. Add cheese mixture, and sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Chill until set. Yield: 8 servings.

Java, with an estimated population of 37 million persons, is the world's most heavily-populated island.

Fresh Peaches Enhanced By Gingerbread Waffles

A fresh peach cobbler may rival even strawberry shortcake as a popular summer dessert. Of course, peaches are not to be scorned as a filling for shortcake. Recently, when some of my out-of-town friends asked especially for a strawberry shortcake, I almost had to settle for peaches, but, at the last minute, I found some California berries in market.

Edith Barber

For a cobbler, the peaches do not have to be entirely ripe, as they must be when we serve them without any cooking. We may like to prepare a pastry shell, bake and cool it, and then fill it with sweetened sliced peaches before topping with whipped cream. The sliced peaches are also delicious with freshly baked gingerbread waffles, as well as with the usual type of waffles.

To develop flavor, peaches should be sprinkled with sugar and allowed to stand at room temperature a short time before they are served. To prevent darkening of the fruit, lemon juice may be mixed with the fruit as soon as it is peeled and sliced. By the way, sugar does not combine well with fruit chilling in the refrigerator.

If peaches are completely ripe, they can be easily peeled, using the back of a knife rather than the sharp edge. Old-fashioned recipes call for the use of a silver knife for slicing, but stainless steel — of which most of our cutlery is manufactured nowadays — does the same good job.

FRESH PEACH COBBLER

7 cups slices fresh peaches (4 pounds)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1¼ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
3½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
2 to 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
Pastry

Toss sliced peaches with lemon juice in 1½-quart casserole. Combine sugar, salt, cinnamon and tapioca and sprinkle over peaches. Dot with butter or margarine. Cover with pastry rolled ⅛-inch thick. Trim, turn under and flute edge. Cut 2 or 3 gashes in top to allow for escape of steam. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 45 minutes or until crust is brown. Serve warm or cold. Yield: 6 servings.

FRESH PEACHES ON GINGERBREAD WAFFLES

3 cups sliced fresh peaches
Sugar
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1-3 cup shortening, melted
¾ cup light molasses
1-3 cup buttermilk
1 egg, beaten
3 tablespoons hot water
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix sliced peaches with sugar. Sift together the dry ingredients. Stir in shortening, molasses, buttermilk and beaten egg. Beat in the hot water. Bake on hot, lightly greased waffle irons. Spoon sliced peaches over waffles and top with whipped cream. Yield: 8 servings.

CREME FROMAGE

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
½ cup boiling water
1 tablespoon instant coffee
6 ounces (¾ cup) cream cheese
2 tablespoons sugar
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Soften gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes. Combine boiling water with instant coffee. When dissolved, stir into gelatine mixture. Beat cream cheese with fork until creamy. Add sugar and gelatine mixture. Chill until it begins to set, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, and chill until set. Serve with sliced peaches or other fruit. Yield: 6 servings.

Cooked Corn Can Be Used In Fritters

Should corn fritters and corn pudding be made with cooked or uncooked corn? The latter is usually indicated in a recipe and it is usually suggested the kernels be grated from the cob.

In this case, there is no better use for them than in these recipes. As most people do not like to bother with deep fat in warm weather, they are inclined to make a sort of corn griddlecake that is often known as corn oyster. There seems to be no particular reason for this title, but the product is very good served with crisp bacon for breakfast or luncheon. Someone is almost sure to demand syrup as an accompaniment. In this case, the oysters may serve as a dessert.

It is important to grate the corn for a pudding, which is such a good choice with baked ham or sauteed ham slices. It is a favorite accompaniment with fried chicken and cream gravy. We also like the combination of lima beans and fresh corn that we call succotash. They are best cooked separately, then dressed with cream, salt and pepper.

No One Is in Jail Yet For Contempt of Congress

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Forty-five persons involved in security investigations have been indicted on contempt of Congress charges in the past three years. But none has yet spent a day in jail.

Acquittals, appeals and suspended sentences have kept them from behind bars.

Congress cites for contempt witnesses who refuse to answer questions put to them by congressional committees and who, in the opinion of the lawmakers, have no legitimate grounds for their refusal. The question of the witnesses' guilt is decided by federal judges.

Justice Department officials say it will be even tougher to make contempt of Congress citations stick in the future. The reason: The Supreme Court's ruling in the Watkins case. That decision upheld the right of witnesses to refuse to answer questions unless congressional committees establish the pertinency of their questions and show that their investigations are intended to lead to new legislation and are not exposure for exposure's sake.

54 Persons Cited

Justice Department records show 54 persons have been cited for contempt of Congress in security investigations in the past three years. Of this number, 45 were indicted and 27 later were convicted.

Four were acquitted, eight are still awaiting trial and two have been tried and are awaiting verdicts. In another four cases indictments were dismissed in the district court before trial—three by the court and one by the government on its own motion.

Of the 27 convicted, a number chose to appeal, including Arthur Miller, playwright husband of actress Marilyn Monroe.

The U.S. Court of Appeals so far has upheld four of these appeals and reversed four. In one case, the district court reversed itself. Twelve appeals are now pending.

Two of those convicted decided to accept suspended sentences and fines.

In the Watkins case, the Supreme Court reversed the contempt conviction of John T. Watkins, a labor leader, who spoke freely of his own past Communist connections but refused to name others he knew or believed to be Communists.

The court found the House Committee on Unamerican Activities had gone beyond its authority in questioning Watkins about the affiliations of his associates.

Watkins did not take refuge in any of the usual constitutional protections, contending only that he believed such questions were not pertinent.

On the grounds of the Watkins decision, a district court judge reversed himself and acquitted New York Times desk man Seymour Peck on a contempt of Congress charge.

The high court also vacated the conviction of Harry Sacher and Lloyd Barenblatt. Sacher refused to answer certain questions before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. Barenblatt balked at questions by House security probers.

Also in the light of the Watkins decision, the appeals court reversed a previous ruling upholding the contempt conviction of Marcus Singer, a Cornell University professor.

Miller, meanwhile, has asked the appeals court for a summary dismissal of his conviction for contempt in refusing to identify associates who attended Marxist study group meetings in the past.

Miller is appealing a one-month suspended sentence and a $500 fine. His attorney, Joseph L. Rauh says the Watkins decision fits the Miller case "like a glove."

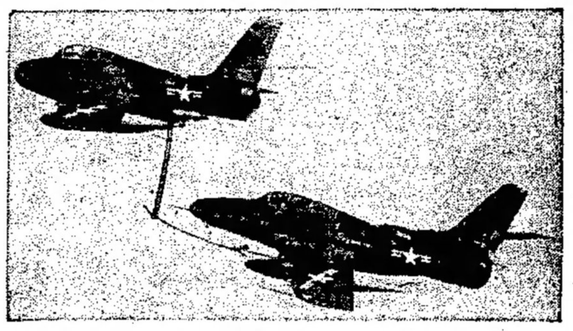
The fighter-bomber-tanker lowers its "flying gas pipes" with funnel at end as the photo-reconnaissance plane closes in.



Contact! The "rec" plane inserts its probe into the gasline drogue. They can "fill 'er up" in a maximum of 15 minutes.

450 GALLONS, PLEASE — A new system of aerial refueling developed by Republic Aviation makes tankers out of fighter-bombers in a matter of minutes, and makes possible refueling at high speeds and 30,000 feet altitude. It is said to increase range "up to 70 per cent."

Gulf Reports Higher Income

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Gulf Oil Corp. reported today a 25 per cent increase in consolidated net income in the first half of 1957 and predicted "net income should remain at a high level, although second half earnings may not register the gains achieved in the first six months."

Consolidated net income from operations in the first half totaled $177,563,914. Including a $24,191,000 non-recurring profit realized from the sale in April of Gulf's remaining shares of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. stock, earnings amounted to $201,755,000, equal to $6.81 a share.

In the first half of 1956 the $3 billion oil company earned $141,544,612 or $4.77 a share.

Recalls History Of Touhy

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN

CHICAGO (UP)—If Roger Touhy makes good on his latest bid for freedom, he'll come back to a world with a different set of tags from the ones that were pinned to the era he helped to name.

Roger is the son of an honest policeman, James Touhy. His brothers, Jimmy, John, and Joe Touhy died in the gunfire of Chicago's beer wars.

When Roger was a page one figure, the decades were the "Roaring Twenties," and the "Turbulent Thirties." Roger helped make them noisy.

Touhys Battle Capone

He had help in the clamor that sounded through the streets of lusty old Chicago at the time. It came from such characters as:

Scarface Al Capone, who won millions while the Touhy gang was coining thousands in the lucrative bootleg trade of the sinful, ginful twenties.

Matt Kolb, Touhy's beer-running partner, and James (Red) Barker, a Capone minion, who met violent ends in a decade marked by more than 500 gangland murders.

A half-dozen or more labor leaders who fell at the hands of underworld assassins when the Capone mob challenged the Touhys for control of fat union treasuries.

Roger's was a name to be feared in the era that produced such characters as Johnny Torrio, Pretty Boy Floyd, Frank (The Enforcer) Nitti, Basil (The Owl) Banghart and a young upstart named John Dillinger.

It was an era when speakeasies blossomed like geraniums, bullets spoke louder than ballots and "taken for a ride" became part of the language.

On Kidnap Charge

Roger Touhy, a dapper dandy with a quiet voice and nerves of steel, had no conviction on his record until he was put away in 1934 for the kidnaping of swindler John (Jake the Barber) Factor. And he wept when the prison barber shaved off his curly hair.

The collapse of the Touhy crowd began in July, 1933, when Roger and three cohorts were arrested near Elkhorn, Wis. In the car were pistols, adhesive tape and rope that spelled "kidnapers" to police.

They were indicted for the separate kidnapings of William Hamm Jr., a St. Paul, Minn., brewer, and Factor, a fabulous Chicago swindler who was evading efforts of British investors to have him returned to England for trial in an alleged $7,500,000 swindle.

The gang was acquitted in their trial on charges of abducting Hamm. The first trial on charges of kidnaping Factor for a $70,000 ransom ended in a hung jury. In a second trial they were found guilty in February, 1934, and sentenced to 99 years in prison.

In 1942 Roger Touhy, Ranghart and five other convicts escaped from Stateville Penitentiary. Except for two slain by police bullets, all were recaptureed within a few weeks. New 199-year sentences were imposed on Touhy and Banghart for aiding a fellow escapee.

Seeking Old Planes for New Airfield

DALLAS, Tex.—(UP)—The nation's accent today is on speedier aircraft but at Love Field in Dallas officials are seeking ancient flying machines.

A committee wants the old airplanes for the October 20-27 opening of the new Love Field terminal. It's looking for all types of planes that have used Love Field since the first scheduled airmail flight in 1926.

The object is a display on the ramp, during open-house days, of models ranging from the 1926 Curtiss Carrier Pigeon through a great new four-engine jet airliner.

Committeemen do not expect the display to be complete but they think it will be one of the most colorful shows of its kind.

The wanted planes include: Curtiss Carrier Pigeon, Stinson Detroiter, two-place Stearman, Lockheed Orion, Pinch-Back Fairchild, Fokker F-10 and Fokker Super Universal, Pilgrim, Vultee, Travelair J-6, Stinson model "A" and Stinson tri-motor, Curtiss Condor, Lockheed Vega, Lockheed Electra, Tri-motor Ford, DC-2, DC-2½, DC-3, DC-4, DC-6, DC-7, Convair 303 and 404, Constellation, and Boeing 707 jet.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and son, George Nash, who died three years ago today, August 8, 1954.
Deep down in our hearts there's a picture,
More precious than silver or gold,
It's a picture of you, our dear one
Whose memory will never grow old
Treasured thoughts of you dear
Often bring a silent tear,
Thoughts return to scenes long past,
Time goes on, but memories last
Sadly missed by wife, Grace; son, George, and mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Nash

'OPERATION FAR SIDE' TESTED — These photos are from tests in Minneapolis, Minn., of the U. S. Air Force "Operation Far Side," a balloon and rocket project to explore outer space to thousands of miles. The balloon will carry the 1,900-pound apparatus to 100,000 feet, where the rocket system will take over. The rocket is expected to hit 17,000 mph. The thing was whipped up by Ford's Aeronutronic Systems, Inc., in Los Angeles.

Automation Needs More 'Manpower'

CHICAGO (UP) — Automation, the great labor saver, is on the brink of a manpower shortage.

This paradox was pointed up by Robert J. O'Brien, a mechanical engineering expert at Armour Research Foundation of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

O'Brien said automation, sometimes accused of outdating human beings, is in need of more of them with college training. And it needs more technicians trained in the complexities of new processes.

O'Brien believes automation is "more to be desired than feared." He said the need for automation is heightened by the fact that there now is a smaller working population due to the decline of births during the depression.

In contrast, he said, there is an "expanded market" at both ends of the age scale from more older persons and children.

But industry and military already are experiencing shortages of qualified people to maintain complex automatic programs, O'Brien said.

In addition, he said, automation is creating a wholly new field for industrial management, which also needs qualified people.

Automation has given management new tools, he said, and management in turn must be trained to use them.

For example, O'Brien said, automation can provide management with immediate knowledge of material stocks, inventories, sales and production.

Thus, the industrial manager is able to apply weapons of analysis to his business which heretofore had been used only by science. With these, he is able to make rational decisions instead of rough estimates.

O'Brien said this gives the industrial manager a "new status."

"Industry needs the man who has been broadened and deepened by education in the humanities and liberal studies," he said.

Top Blood Donors

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(UP) — "World's champion blood donors" — that's what they're calling the inmates of Missouri's state penitentiary here these days.

The tag is not without foundation, prison officials here said.

While no comparative figures available this year, inmates of the state prison have surpassed the high mark set last year by a Michigan institution.

During the Red Cross blood donor year ending this August, the inmates donated an unprecedented 6,395 pints of whole blood. The record was made possible by 400 inmates coming forth with an "extra" pint, according to the J-C-Mo News, prison newspaper.

Warden E. V. Nash said that an inmate receives 15 days "good time" for each blood donation. "The incentive certainly is there," he said. "But many long-termers or life-termers also give regularly, and the good time doesn't do them much good."

One inmate, a veteran of 44 donations, commented: "This probably will be my last donation due to my age. It's nice to have been able to do something good while in prison."

About 75 per cent of the men participate in the blood donation program to some degree, Nash said.

"The boys saw that Missouri was second in the blood donation program last year, and just decided to do something about it," Nash said with a touch of pride.

Murder Charges Against Ga. Soldier

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)— The U.S. Army's 3rd Armored Division announced today the filing of second degree murder charges against Pfc. Barney Willoughby, 20, of Watkinsville, Ga., for the death of another soldier in a street brawl.

Willoughby was accused of killing Specialist 3C Robert E. Hamilton, of 30 N. 14th St., Harrisburg, Pa., by beating and kicking him in the head July 17. No date has been set for the court martial trial.

Set up 'Eddie' Award For Recording Stars

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)— Oscar and Emmy soon will be joined by a third "star" of the speeches-and-statuette circuit — an "Eddie" award given to the top recordings of the year.

The singers and musicians who entertain on phonograph records are banding together for the first time into their own honorary academy and will hand out their version of the movies' Oscar and TV's Emmy honors.

A Hollywood chapter of the new National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences has been formed with Paul Weston, Columbia records executive and husband of Jo Stafford, as president. A New York chapter next will be organized.

Statuette Being Designed

Then the Academy will add to the long list of awards that are handed out every year to everybody from Lassie to Yul Brynner.

"We're having a statuette designed now and an awards committee is working on a name for it," said Weston.

One name being considered is "Eddie", after Thomas Edison, father of the gramophone. The awards will be made in numerous categories with the focus probably on awards given to the top female and male vocal records of 1957. The statuettes will be handed the winners on a TV "spectacular."

To Further Profession

"This academy has been under discussion for many years," an enthusiastic Weston said. "Our purpose is the same as the movie and TV academies — an honorary to further our profession.

"We feel it's about time the record industry grows up and gets a little recognition for its part in the entertainment industry. The record companies never promote records as a form of entertainment the way movie and TV companies promote themselves.

"After all, a lot of stars got their start in the phonograph medium. And the record industry is in a tremendous boom now because of hi-fi."

Recording artists will vote on the awards. Classical musicians and singers also have been invited to join the academy and will receive awards, too.

New Theme Song Now Introduces Art Pallan Show

After close to 6,000 spins on the air, Art Pallan's time-worn theme song, "Art Pallan's On The Air," has given way to a new version.

The new theme, which is up to the minute musically, made its debut last week. It replaces a theme recorded especially for Art by West Coast singer Artie Wayne early in 1953, with big-band backing. Pallan played this number six times a day, and had it re-recorded about a dozen times.

Art's new introductory music for his 10 to noon, 4 to 7:30 p. m. KDKA shows was arranged by Cordic and Company funnyman, Bob Trow. Bob's quartet, consisting of himself, Lum Sams, Jim Ferrang and Warren Carson, was augmented by Patty Troy for the Pallan-theme session.

The combo backing Trow's vocal group features Johnny Costa on piano, Billy Butchko, drums; and Johnny Vance, bass. Their modern vocal rendition blends into a Les Brown recording of "Lullaby in Rhythm," over which Art can greet his listeners.

Trow credits Pallan with the idea for the song, which he and Carson worked out for the quintet. The recording was made by W. Pascuzzi at Wayne Recording Studios, in Pittsburgh.

Anthracite Coal Production Down

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UP) — Commercial production of anthracite coal for the week ended Aug. 3 was estimated at 487,000 tons and production for the entire year has totaled 12,378,000 tons, a drop of more than seven percent from last year, the Anthracite Institute said today.

At the same time the institute reported that "despite the unusually warm spring weather" trucking of anthracite "continued to record gains and is currently within 100 thousand tons of the highest annual rate reported in 21 years."

Trucks move approximately 30 per cent of all coal shipped, the Institute said.

Blinking Is Warning That Eyes Are Strained

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Like many of our modern automobiles, your eyes have a built-in windshield washer and wiper. It's called blinking.

Blinking and winking are entirely different things. A blink is an involuntary reflex while a wink is a highly voluntary action.

A wink — at the wrong time and to the wrong person — might bring prompt and severe damage to the eyes. The medical term for this universal malady, usually caused by a clenched fist, is "blackeye."

A blink, on the other hand, serves a useful purpose.

Blinking wipes the eyeballs clean and lubricates them at the same time. The action also serves as relief mechanism which momentarily lessens eyestrain.

That's why the rate of blinking increases when you try to read small type, try to see through a glare or wear the wrong glasses.

Each blink requires only a fraction of a second. In fact, blinking is one of the body's fastest actions. During this time the eyeballs roll inward, then upward and finally return to their normal position.

Everyone doesn't blink at the same rate. The frequency varies, of course, with different tasks as well as with different persons.

But generally when your rate of blinking increases a great deal, it means you are straining your eyes.

Usually you can tell when you are blinking more than you ordinarily do. Someone in your family is also likely to notice it.

This is a signal to rest your eyes for a while. If the rate of blinking doesn't subside, you'd better see your eye doctor.

We humans are pretty lucky to be able to get the relief afforded by blinking.

Snakes and chameleons, for example, can't blink at all. Neither has movable eyelids.

A chameleon's eyelids are permanently fused with only a small central opening, while a snake has a transparent membrane covering the eyes.
